Fear Increases For Flier and Miss Mackay

Little Hope That Couple Had Escaped Fate Met Last Summer by Nungesser and Coli—Gravest Anxiety Felt In England—Investigate Report That Yellow Object and Two Human Beings Are on Stratton Island.

New York, March 15 (AP).—Despite widespread but unconfirmed reports of planes heard winging through the night, fear increased today that a viscount's daughter had followed a princess to death in the latest attempt to fly the perilous western air lane of the North Atlantic.

There was still hope that the Honorable Elsie Mackay and Captain Walker Hinchliffe, British war ace, had somehow escaped the fate met last summer by the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and her two pilots, and by Nungesser and Coli, but it was the hope of desperation. Miss Mackay and Hinchliffe took off in England at 3:40 o'clock Eastern Standard Time Tuesday morning, and by the most optimistic computation their gasoline could only have kept them aloft until dawn today. But hours after that no word had been received of them and aviators generally feared that the North Atlantic, never yet crossed in an airplane in the westerly direction, had increased the number of its victims by two.

Investigate Rumor.

Portland, Maine., Mar. 15 (AP).—The Evening Express learns that coast guards at the Biddeford Pool station this afternoon were investigating an unconfirmed report that a yellow object and two human beings, possibly the missing Endeavour and its occupants, Captain W. R. Hinchliffe and the Honorable Elsie Mackay, are safe on Stratton Island, about two miles off Old Orchard Beach.

A woman who made the report, stated that, although it was misty, many people gathered on the beach at Old Orchard could unmistakably see the yellow object and the two people, who seemed to be waving. A man, who refused to reveal his identity, telephoned the Evening Express and gave similar information. He said that the "yellow thing and two people" could be seen plainly.

Deep Anxiety in London.

London, March 15 (AP).—The gravest anxiety as to the fate of Captain Walter Hinchliffe and the Honorable Elsie Mackay was felt in England today, as the hours ticked by without news of the monoplane Endeavour.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, when more than fifty-three hours had passed since the takeoff at Cranwell Tuesday morning, it was figured that the Endeavour's gasoline supply must have been exhausted for several hours and there was no hope that the plane was still in the air.

The vague reports that arrived during the day of planes landing or being sighted at various points were hopefully seized upon by an anxious public but lack of confirmation of each soon caused these fleeting hopes to fade.

The deepest anxiety, naturally, was felt in the London homes most intimately associated with the flight—that of Lord Inchcape, father of Miss Mackay, and that of Captain Hinchliffe in Purley.

Mrs. Hinchliffe was said to be bearing up well under the strain but in contrast with her willingness to discuss her husband's flight yesterday, she denied herself today to visitors. Harvey Lloyd, the flier's agent, met all inquirers at the door.

"She is endeavoring to keep as cheerful as she can," he said, "but naturally she is becoming really anxious and also is very tired and weary, as she has been waiting up all night for news."

During the morning Hinchliffe's two children, Joan, aged four, and Pamela, aged three, were taken out by a nurse for an airing.

With Lord and Lady Inchcape in Egypt, watch at the Inchcape mansion was being kept by the household staff.

BELIEVE LAND SLIDES CAUSED DAM CATASTROPHE

Los Angeles, March 15 (AP).—William Mulholland, chief engineer of the Los Angeles bureau of water and power, after an inspection of the scene of the St. Francis Dam collapse, declared his belief today that a series of land slides above the dam caused the catastrophe.

"Something terrific happened to break that huge mass of concrete into bits," Mulholland said.

LINCOLN BATHHOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Mar. 15 (AP).—The Lincoln bathhouse on the state reservation here was destroyed by fire today. It was a large wooden structure and provided for 212 mineral baths. Local firemen were unable to cope with the flames, which had gained great headway. The fire chief advanced the theory that the fire might have been of incendiary origin.

Arrest American, Kill Six Natives

Alonzo Taylor Charged With Aiding Rebels in State of Jalisco—Priest and Five Civilians Executed at Cemetery.

Mexico City, March 15 (AP).—Arrest of an American and execution of six natives including a priest, caused attention today to be centered on the government's continuing efforts to suppress the insurgent movement.

A despatch from Guadalajara to Jalisco said Alonzo L. Taylor, owner of the San Felipe Hijarr ranch in the state of Jalisco, was arrested by military authorities of Guadalajara, where he has been residing recently. The arrest was made upon the request of authorities of Ahuacatlan, state of Nayarit. They charged Taylor was aiding rebels in that state. He was cited to the attorney general for investigation.

A Roman Catholic priest and five civilians were executed at El Saucito Cemetery, military authorities at San Luis Potosi announced.

The men were found guilty by a summary court martial of seditious activities on Monday. The trial lasted several hours and at its conclusion the condemned men were placed in automobiles and driven direct to the cemetery. They were met there by the chief of the military garrison and other authorities, who were already waiting as witnesses to the execution. The condemned men were Donacinno Villarreal, a priest; Antonio Mendez, Angel Zamarron, Juan Grimaldo, Rafael Vontoya and Guillermo Valazquez, military authorities stated.

They were backed against the wall. The execution squad fired and four men fell. The squad fired a second volley, dropping the other two. The coup de'grace was then given each one. An army physician pronounced the men dead. Concluding the proceedings, troops were marched past the bodies.

Newspaper dispatches said that while the firing squad made ready its rifles, the commanding officer asked the condemned men to express any last wish.

The priest said he only desired to state he died without remorse. As he said this, he knelt. All except Grimaldo followed his example.

"We are dying like men," said Grimaldo with his back to the wall, facing the executioners.

George W. Potter In New Field

Superintendent of K. and R. Ferry Resigns—Engages in Fire Protection Service in Ulster County.

George W. Potter, who for a number of years has been superintendent of the Kingston-Rhinecliff ferry, has resigned, effective today, and will engage in fire protection service, specializing in hand fire extinguishers. He has completed a course of special training in this work and is in a position to give complete service in this line, the full scope of which is described in an advertisement in today's issue of The Freeman.

In addition to maintaining an inspection and recharging service, Mr. Potter will act as local representative for Ulster county of the Fyr-Fyter Company, of Dayton, Ohio, one of the largest manufacturers of fire extinguishers and supplies in the country. Their products embrace a complete assortment of fire extinguishers of all standard types and a wide variety of sizes and are approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories and similar examining agencies.

Mr. Potter has been a resident of Kingston for about twenty years and has a wide circle of friends who will wish him success in his new venture.

General Motors Again Leads

New York, Mar. 15 (AP).—General Motors common leaped back to the head of the procession on the New York Stock Exchange today when it spurted up to $164 a share, the highest since the stock dividend last year. Advances of as much as $1 a share occurred between sales. The stock closed last night at $157.

The James Donnelly arrested for public intoxication Tuesday evening was not the James Donnelly of 43 Foxhall avenue.

Sandino Again Files Protests

Demanding Immediate Withdrawal of the Invading Troops—Other Conditions for Peace Laid Down By Sandino.

Washington, Mar. 15 (AP).—The occasional pleas in Congress for withdrawal from Nicaragua of the American marines now hunting down "General" Sandino in an effort to restore peace have been added to by one from Sandino himself.

In a message indirectly delivered to the Senate, the Nicaraguan leader declares that unless the marines are taken away he could "not be responsible for the safety of any North American official resident in Nicaraguan territory."

Replacement of Adolfo Dias, now president of Nicaragua, by some Nicaraguan not a candidate for the office, and supervision of the coming elections in that country by Latin American representatives instead of the marines are two other conditions for peace laid down by Sandino.

His message together with correspondence between himself and Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, commander of the American special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, relating to peace negotiations, were made public yesterday after their submission to Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee by Lewis S. Gannett, associate editor of the Nation. Borah had no comment to make on the documents, which were brought to this country for Sandino by Carleton Beals, special correspondent of the magazine.

Signed "For the Fatherland and Liberty, A. C. Sandino," the message addressed to the Senate said:

"In the name of the Nicaraguan people I protest against the continued barbarism of your forces in my country, such as the recent total destruction of the town of Quilali. I shall never recognize a government by foreign power. I demand the immediate withdrawal of the invading troops."

Admiral Sellers, the documents disclosed for the first time, wrote Sandino January 20, warning him that the American forces were preparing to take up his trail to "insure complete peace" in Nicaragua and calling attention to the obligations of the United States, under the Stimson agreement, to protect American lives and property and those of other foreign powers in that country.

The naval officer's letter urged Sandino to follow the example of other factions by laying down his arms in accordance with the agreement, but Sandino replied with a demand for withdrawal of American forces.

YOUNG BOY FOUND IN AN UNCONSCIOUS CONDITION

Shortly after 5 o'clock while James V. Halloran was driving his car through Hasbrouck avenue he noticed the body of a young boy stretched on the ground near the garage at the foot of the High Road. Stopping his car he placed the lad in it and drove to police headquarters. The boy was later removed, still unconscious, to the City of Kingston Hospital, where according to the nursing staff, he was found to be intoxicated. This morning he had recovered from the effects but was still at the hospital. The boy's name was given as William Mitchell, 13 years old, who resides with his aunt on East Strand. The police are investigating the matter to ascertain, if possible, where the boy obtained the intoxicants.

NAVIGATION ON LAKE ERIE BEGINS MARCH 21.

Detroit, March 15 (AP).—One of the earliest opening dates for navigation on Lake Erie in several years was announced today by the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company. E. H. McCracken, general passenger agent, said regular daily service between Detroit and Cleveland would be inaugurated March 21.

McCracken also announced extension of the Chicago division to Cleveland, with regular service between Chicago and Cleveland via Detroit, Mackinac Island and St. Ignace, June 26 to September 3. He also said the Buffalo and Niagara Falls division will open about April 26, two weeks earlier than last season, weather permitting.

LOSS OF EASTMAN FILMS ARE REPORTED SLIGHT.

Cairo, Egypt, March 15 (AP).—The loss of films taken on the African hunting expedition of George Eastman, Rochester, N. Y., camera manufacturer, in the train fire yesterday, was slight, Dr. Alfred Kaiser, a member of the party, said today.

Previously it had been reported that all the films were destroyed. Mr. Kaiser said with the exception of two rolls of exposed films, the others had been shipped separately from Khartom, so that there was practically no loss of exposed films.

Mr. Eastman, who escaped from a flaming car, was apparently none the worse for his experience today.

Colonel Stewart Resigns.

Shreveport, La., Mar. 15 (AP).—Colonel Robert W. Stewart has resigned as chairman of the board of Dixie Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company, of Indiana, officials of the company announced here today. No reason for the resignation was given.

Start Inquests Into Disaster In California

Bitterness Against City of Los Angeles Shown In Canyon and Santa Clara River Valley—Tentative List of Bodies In Morgue Shows Total of 191.

Santa Paula, Cal., March 15 (AP).—Bitterness against the city of Los Angeles began to show itself in San Francisquito Canyon and Santa Clara river valley today as interest centered upon numerous coroner's inquests and other investigations to determine responsibility for the loss of hundreds of lives and millions of dollars in property in the St. Francis Dam break.

While the bodies of nearly 200 valley residents lay in improvised morgues and 300 or more still remained unaccounted, the issue of responsibility for the disaster was thrust into the foreground when rehabilitation committees charged that the Southern California metropolis had usurped the water rights of the valley in building the St. Francis Dam.

Dr. D. W. Mott, former state senator from Santa Paula, informed Governor C. C. Young that "the responsibility is that of a selfish city that took the water belonging to us." Mott said his opinion had been expressed in answer to a question put by the chief executive, who had asked for an opinion on responsibility for the disaster.

C. C. Teague, chairman of the Santa Clara valley committee, in an address said: "We want Los Angeles to know that it has taken millions from us."

"The City of Los Angeles will try to minimize the damage and prove that we are not entitled to anything," Teague continued. "We probably will have to appeal to the courts."

Inquests Ordered.

Inquests were ordered started today at Fillmore, Moor Park, Santa Paula and Oxnard. Governor Young signified his intention of launching a state investigation, and the state railroad commission announced plans for a quiz. A committee of eleven Ventura county citizens was chosen by the board of supervisors to determine the extent of damage in the county.

Meanwhile, the opinion was expressed by several persons in the stricken area that the 300 persons still unaccounted for had been buried forever in the miles of yellow silt deposited by the escaping waterss as they rolled toward the Pacific. Hope was maintained in some quarters that many of these had left the canyon and valley on warnings and were safe.

It appeared improbable that all of those still buried in the silt would be recovered, because of its depth. It is nearly thirty feet deep in some places, and the tangled wreckage embedded in the quagmire has made digging for bodies a most difficult operation.

Shattered communications and a mud bound countryside, making strangers of towns that formerly were neighbors, rendered impossible the positive checking of bodies moved from one morgue to another.

Bodies In Morgues.

The tentative list of bodies in morgues, compiled today from official and semi-official sources, showed a total of 191, divided as follows:

Newhall 52.
Fillmore 49.
Santa Paula 48.
Ventura 14.
Castaic 12.
Oxnard 8.
Bakersfield 8.

Scala Wore Red Gown and Hat

Broadway Restaurant Proprietor Entertained Guests by Dressing as a Woman, Painting His Face and Staging a Song and Dance Act—Fined $10.

Louis Scala, 48, who is proprietor of the restaurant on Broadway, near Cedar street, thought he would boom business Wednesday night and early this morning by dressing up in a red gown and hat, painting his face and staging a song and dance act in his restaurant. The performance was brought to an abrupt close by the visit of Policeman Camp, who placed Scala under arrest and escorted him to police headquarters.

According to the police Louis will never be guilty of winning any beauty prize. He would have spent the balance of the night in the county jail, but fortunately was able to furnish cash bail for his appearance later in police court.

When court convened this morning Scala appeared to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct. He had changed his attire and also removed the paint from his face. He is short, chunky and wears glasses. When the charge was read to him he kept on insisting that he could not help it if patrons dropped nickels in the electric player piano, and overlooked explaining why he dressed up as a woman.

His explanation about the player piano was cut short by Judge Shufeldt imposing a fine of $10 for disorderly conduct. Louis paid.

Compensation Hearings.

Referee L. A. Kilburn of the labor department of the State Industrial Commission will be at the court house on Friday, hearing petitioners for compensation under the employers' liability act.

Assault Case Not Negligence

Action of Mabel Volence Dismissed, Judge Staley Holding That Case Was Not In Negligence But In Assault.

An action brought in supreme court by Mabel Volence against Bernard Levinson for injuries sustained when she was struck by the truck of defendant at Ellenville on July 2, 1927, was dismissed at the conclusion of the testimony. Mrs. Volence claimed damages in a negligence action. Judge Staley held that the case was not one in negligence but in assault.

Plaintiff was riding in the car of Mr. Salzberg of Leibhardt on the date in question. At Church and Market streets in Ellenville a truck ahead of the car stopped and the Salzberg car was stopped. The car of defendant in charge of Max Fein came up and ran into the rear of the Salzberg car. The damage was slight but Salzberg got out and asked for Fein's license. He claims he was refused. Mrs. Volence also got out of the Salzberg car and walked in front of the defendant's truck which was a Graham Brothers car. Plaintiff testified that Fein refused to give his license number and stated he had no time to bother. He told Mrs. Volence to get out of the way of his car or he would step on the gas and run over her. She did not move and he started, his car striking her on the knee.

Judge Staley held that this was not an action in negligence but one in assault. At the conclusion of the plaintiff's testimony Mr. Brooks who appeared for the defendant moved for a dismissal. Judge Staley denied the motion and gave defendant an opportunity to introduce testimony so that in the event the plaintiff could show by cross examination of the defendant's witnesses that there had been negligence there would be a question of negligence for the jury to act upon. Mr. Brooks rested his case without putting on any witnesses and Judge Staley then granted the former motion to dismiss on the grounds that there was no element of negligence but that the action was one in assault. Manuel Dittenheimer appeared for plaintiff and F. W. Brooks for defendant.

Hermance Action.

An action brought by Mrs. Mary L. Hermance against the Globe Indemnity Company to recover money judgment under terms of indemnity policy was next taken up. Mrs. Hermance seeks to recover for injuries sustained when she was injured while a passenger in the Highland-Kingston auto bus in 1923 when it was wrecked near Esopus after being in collision with another car alleged to have been operated by Benjamin Seides of New York.

The case has been tried before and resulted in a verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $5,000. It is alleged that in attempting to pass the bus Seides ran into the front wheel of the bus causing the driver to swerve from the road and collide with a tree. Two persons were killed and several injured. Seides did not stop after the collision and claims it was not his car which caused the accident. He claims he was not in the vicinity at the time.

The former case was brought against Seides and he being unable to pay the judgment Mrs. Hermance seeks now to recover from the insurance company. This action is brought under a law which was passed in 1917 which compels an insurance company to pay a judgment in the event the persons insured cannot pay.

On the former trial Mr. DuBois, the owner of the bus, was sued jointly but the case as against him was dismissed. John W. Eckert and Floyd W. Powell appear for Mrs. Hermance and Ireland & Caverly by Andrew J. Cook appear for the defendant. Mr. Hermance also has a similar action for loss of services.

TWO MEN JAILED FOR PUBLIC INTOXICATION

John Featherstone of Railroad avenue, was arrested Wednesday night by Officer Camp who charged John with public intoxication. When arrested John had some empty bottles in his pocket. The plate glass window in the place of Edward Reiss on Cedar street had been broken earlier in the evening, but there was no evidence to convict John of breaking the glass. At first John pleaded not guilty, but later changed his plea to guilty and was jailed for ten days.

James Donnelly, a boatman, who faced the judge Wednesday on a charge of public intoxication and was given a suspended sentence, was picked up that afternoon on the same charge, and this morning was jailed for ten days.

OCTOGENARIAN ACTIVE AS COLLEGE OFFICIAL

Greencastle, Ind., March 15 (AP).—Love of religion and the university from which he was graduated 62 years ago are the forces that keep Dr. Salem N. Town at his desk as financial secretary and treasurer of De Pauw University despite his 81 years.

Dr. Town returned to De Pauw 23 years ago to assume his duties. Since 1905 he has handled the finances of the institution and watched the assets grow from less than $1,000,000 to more than $7,000,000.

Educated to be a physician, he gave up the practice of medicine in 1875 to become a minister.

One-Way Traffic On Wall Street March 22

Uptown Merchants and Automotive Dealers Receive Permission For One-Way Traffic on Wall Street For Their Big Open Air Automobile Show and Spring Display—Event Takes Place on Thursday Evening, March 22.

The Uptown Merchants and the Automotive Dealers have received permission from the police authorities to close Wall street to all except one-way traffic on the evening of March 22, between the hours of 5 to 10 o'clock, when Wall street and as much of the adjoining streets as necessary will be used for the big open air automobile show held in connection with Spring Display Week of the Uptown Merchants. All traffic using Wall street that night will go in the direction of North Front street, except the trolley cars, which will proceed in the opposite direction toward Main street.

There will be no parking permitted on Wall street during the hours stated as all of the space will be taken up with the display of the latest models in automobiles. Many of the automobiles will be decorated and some will have special illumination for the event.

All of the stores will be closed that evening between the hours of 5 and 10 o'clock but the windows will be dressed and illuminated so that pedestrians may view the windows as has been done in former years. Every Uptown Merchant is making arrangements for special window displays and is planning to exceed the window displays of former years.

Spring Display Week has always been one of the most attractive features of the opening of the spring season in Kingston, and with the addition of the big out door automobile show on the evening of March 22, it is expected that the attendance will be larger than in other years. Every effort will be made to make the event a noteworthy one and one that will long be remembered.

Merchants, clerks and others should not overlook the fact that Wall street must be cleared of all traffic before 5 o'clock that afternoon so that the automobiles to be displayed may be positioned. It would be well for merchants and clerks in the uptown stores to leave their automobiles at home that noon as it will assist materially in helping the police clear Wall street and as much of the adjoining streets as necessary of all traffic.

Fall and Sinclair In Another Trial

Quapaw Indians Seek To Cancel Leases on Valuable Mining Properties Made to Eagle Picher Lead Company In 1922.

Tulsa, Okla., March 15 (AP)—Albert B. Fall has become the central figure in another trial involving leasing of Government lands in which the name of Harry F. Sinclair, co-defendant with the former secretary of the interior in the Teapot Dome case, also has been mentioned.

The trial here was instituted by the wealthy Quapaw Indians, who seek to cancel leases on valuable mining properties made to the Eagle Picher Lead Company in 1922. The Indians allege Fall approved the leases without conforming to the tribal treaties with the government and without competitive bidding.

With virtually the entire Quapaw tribe assembled and with their leaders crowding the district courtroom, C. B. Ames, of tribal counsel, charged that competitive bidding for the leases "broadcast by Fall was a mere sham and pretense."

Answering the defense contention that the leases had been made in conformity with all existing statutes and treaties, Ames charged that Fall, urged by Sinclair, had determined to award its properties to the lead company.

Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs when the leases were executed, was called to the stand to give his version and told of sending engineers to survey the tracts and determine the policy best for the Indians.

Burke testified that Fall at that time "was much excited over some publicity that had been appearing in the newspapers concerning an investigation by Congress of the leases he had made, known as the Teapot Dome. He told us there would not be another lease made of any kind, without competitive bidding or without publicity."

"He asked us to prepare leasing proposals," Burke continued, "to include competitive bidding regulations with publicity."

Burke said that a new form of lease was approved by Fall and that these forms were circulated among prospective purchasers of the Quapaw holdings. He testified that the Eagle bid appeared to be the highest and best.

In replying to this testimony, Ames declared that Burke "acted more like a clerk in his connection with the lease sale than a department head."

Not Guilty, Says Stewart

To Charges of Violating The Law In Refusing To Answer Questions Asked By Senate Teapot Dome Committee.

Washington, March 15 (AP).—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, pleaded not guilty today to charges of violating the law in refusing to answer questions asked by the Senate Teapot Dome committee.

The oil man was arraigned in District of Columbia supreme court and his counsel asked for twenty days in which the defense might determine the method by which it will attack the indictment. Chief Justice McCoy granted the request and continued Stewart's bond of $5,000. Less than five minutes were required for the arraignment and Stewart hurried away from the courthouse with his counsel.

Stewart was indicted after he had refused to reply to questions of the oil committee regarding whether he had discussed the bonds of the Continental Trading Company with Harry F. Sinclair. He was arrested by the Senate sergeant-at-arms but obtained his liberty on a writ of habeas corpus which still is pending.

Chance for Some One to Get Dog

There are now thirteen unlicensed dogs at the pound in Forsyth Park and Dr. Daniel Connelly, health officer, stated this morning that any one wishing to obtain a dog could pick any one of the animals they desired and by paying the fees would receive the dog. If the dogs are not redeemed by Monday at noon they will be gasecuted.

LEGISLATURE NOT TO VOTE ON ENFORCEMENT BILLS

Albany, N. Y., March 15 (AP).—The Democratic national convention will not have for its guidance in the selection of a presidential candidate any up to date record of Governor Smith's official attitude toward a state prohibition enforcement act. This became clear yesterday when it was announced the Legislature would not vote on enforcement bills sponsored by Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks.

The announcement was made by Mr. Jenks himself at the conclusion of a conference of Republican Assembly leaders. Jenks said that he had decided that pending dry legislation would not be pushed at this session, but he refused to reveal what factor brought him to this viewpoint.

The Assemblyman's statement set at rest reports that he would attempt to force discharge from the assembly rules committee of dry measures, thus bringing them before the lower house for a vote, with the possibility that they would be submitted to the Governor for his signature in the event of passage by the Legislature.

Outstanding among the measures was one calling for optional county enforcement of the prohibition law.

BRITISH MARVEL IN FRONT OF MARATHONERS

Peach Springs, Ariz., March 15 (AP).—When the more than 100 foot racers remaining in the Los Angeles to New York marathon lined up today, the twelfth lap of the 3,400 mile course, Arthur Newton, 44 year old British endurance marvel, topped the list by the margin of nearly eight hours in elapsed time.

For the 297.4 miles covered since the start, March 4, the sinewy entrant from Rhodesia, South Africa, had a total time of 61 hours, 23 minutes. He came in first yesterday on the 51.7 mile lap between Kingman and Peach Springs to add 1:05:30 to his lead over Andrew Payne of Claremore, Okla., second in elapsed time standings.

The route today led to Seligman, 38 miles eastward, bringing the racers into higher country.

Bennett Takes Off.

St. Albans, Vt., March 15 (AP).—Floyd Bennett and four assistants took off from St. Albans Bay today in the Bellanca monoplane which will be used by Commander Richard E. Byrd in his South Pole expedition. Their destination was Grande Mere Que., where the plane will undergo trial flights from the snow.

Memorials to Penn. Troops

Philadelphia, March 15 (AP).—Three memorials to Pennsylvania troops in the World War will be dedicated May 29 and 30 in France at points where sons of the state most distinguished themselves in encounters of the American and allied offensives.

The monuments of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania—a drinking fountain, a large colonnade and a bridge—are to be paid for out of a $500,000 appropriation of the legislature. They are in the course of completion on sites chosen by the Pennsylvania state battle monuments commission, which approved the designs and is supervising the erection.

One memorial, a beautiful colonnade costing $175,000, has been built at Varennes on a hilltop which was hotly contested by the Pennsylvania forces of the American Expeditionary Forces and the enemy in the Meuse-Argonne drive of late September, 1918. It stands as a tribute to all Pennsylvania soldiers who participated in the war.

In the memorial to the Twenty-eighth Division, "Pennsylvania's Own", the commission has given France a structure as useful as it is ornamental—a bridge connecting Fismes and Fismette across the Vesle river. It replaces a span destroyed in the fighting.

The third monument, a drinking fountain, has been erected at Nantillois in memory of the Eightieth Division, comprised in part of Pennsylvanians.

Two other memorials, one to the Seventy-ninth Division at Montfaucon and another to the Fifty-third Field Artillery Brigade, at Audenard, Belgium, have been held up by the national battle monuments commission, which selected the sites for national memorials. They are to be erected later elsewhere.

Plans for the dedication of the three monuments call for a pilgrimage of Keystone State veterans, headed by Maj. Gen. William G. Price, to the scenes of the fighting. If a large enough number go a steamship will be chartered to leave New York May 19.

DOMINION INCREASING DAIRY MARKET IN U. S.

Ottawa, Canada, March 15 (AP).—During the last fiscal year the United States took virtually one-third of the total dairy exports, including cheese, milk, and cream, from the Dominion of Canada. Official records show the figure to represent an increase of about 22 per cent in eight years.

For many years the British Isles have been Canada's principal market for dairy products, but the experience of the last few years is declared to indicate that the principal export market gradually is shifting to the United States.

The Canadian dairy and cold storage commissioner says the increase is particularly noticeable in regard to cream.

MAY GET FERTILIZERS IN CONCENTRATED FORM

Concentrated fertilizers are here this season. More than that, they will receive greater consideration from New York farmers and probably will be used far more extensively in the years to come, says Professor E. L. Worthen, of the agronomy department of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

The development of so-called concentrated mixed fertilizers results from advances in the manufacture of synthetic nitrogenous materials. These materials are higher in plant food than the animal, fish or vegetable materials which have commonly been used as carriers of plant foods for commercial fertilizer.

All the nitrogen in a fertilizer may come through synthetic materials or "chemicals". While an objection has been raised because these concentrated fertilizers do not contain nitrogen in the form of organic materials, experiments do not show any consistent superiority of nitrogen from organic sources as compared with that from "chemicals". Results from concentrated fertilizers, although still somewhat incomplete, indicate an approximate equal value, pound for pound, of plant food in concentrated mixtures and in fertilizers of ordinary, low concentration.

Advocates Ratios.

Buyers of fertilizer will be advised more and more to consider using ratios such as 1-2-1, 1-7-1, or 1-1-1 instead of the analysis such as 5-10-5. The analyses which have been used for years by New York farmers indicate the percentages of plant food contained. However, since concentrated fertilizer may carry double or triple as much plant food as those less concentrated, the use of ratios to represent the plant food contained instead of the exact formula is advised.

Professor Worthen points out that it is possible to injure seeds or young plants unless the rate of application of concentrated fertilizer is reduced. If a 10-20-10 fertilizer replaces a 5-10-5, the rate of application should be reduced one-half, for example. Special precautions should be taken to prevent the fertilizer from coming in direct contact with the seed, but if the rate of application is not unduly heavy and if the fertilizer is properly mixed with the soil, crops will not be injured.

From Old Saxon Word

"Brand-new" is equivalent to "fire-new," meaning fresh from the fire, bright and new. "Brand" was an old Saxon word meaning "burn." Hence an article fresh from the forge was said to be brand new.

OLD BOSTON CEMETERIES ARE OPENED FOR BURIALS

Boston, March 15 (AP).—Even to this day Boston's centuries-old downtown cemeteries are opened from time to time for funerals.

The out-of-town visitor breathes only the spirit of the past in these places of moldering tombs and crumbling monuments where he traces historic names on the weather-worn stones. The modern Bostonian hurries past the burial places daily without so much as glancing at them. But now and then a member of some old family is laid to rest with his ancestors in the old family tomb or plot.

Two years ago the burial ground on Boston Common was opened for the funeral of Miss Helen C. Parker of Newton, member of an old Massachusetts family. And this March the venerable King's Chapel burial ground was opened to receive the body of Mrs. Abbie Allen, 86-year old Lynn woman. She was buried there with members of her family at her own request. Her interment was the first there in 40 years.

Mrs. Allen was a descendant of the family of Oliver Wendell Holmes. She was a relative of the late Professor Edward Wendell of Harvard and was a member of the famous Lloyd family of Boston.

No "Growth" of Stone

In one sense of the word, a stone or a mountain may be said to grow when it increases in size or augments through any process of accumulation. As a rule, however, the word "grow" is limited to animals, plants and their organs which increase in size by a natural and organic process.

Here is the wisest House-Owner

He knows the need for two things to preserve his home

1. A skilled painter
2. Pure lead paint

HERE you have the perfect partnership—a combination that assures complete protection for your house against the weather.

Get your skilled painter first. He is the man who did the beautiful jobs up the street. He relies on pure lead paint.

Pure lead paint—the kind obtained with pure white-lead such as Dutch Boy—has been used for generations by the highest type of painter. It gives a tough, durable, weatherproof film—elastic enough not to crack and scale. As the skilled painter will tell you, your paint dollars go further when you use Dutch Boy white-lead.

This trademark, a guarantee of high quality, is on all Dutch Boy products—white-lead, red-lead, linseed oil, flatting oil, solder and babbitt metal. It is the trademark of National Lead Company which manufactures lead products for the many uses for which lead is especially fitted in art, industry and daily life.

Specially mixed for each job, Dutch Boy white-lead in either heavy paste or soft paste form is sold by leading paint dealers. Mixed with linseed oil, it produces a superior gloss paint for exterior use. Mixed with Dutch Boy flatting oil, it makes a thoroughly washable flat paint for interiors. In either case, the paint can be colored to exactly the tint or shade you desire.

Reflects Tomorrow's Vogue

Pioneer

Hudson has pioneered many of the great advancements which make American motorcars the greatest dollar value of any commodity in the world.

It introduced and popularized such body types as the Sedan, Town Car, Speedster and Cabriolet.

It invented the Coach, which turned the entire industry to closed cars.

It invented the exclusive Super-Six principle which is still the industry's ideal of motor smoothness.

It developed the companion invention to the Super-Six principle which turns waste heat to power. Together they combine the highest known efficiency in power generation and power transmission.

Hudson, too, invented the patented spring suspension, which makes these cars the easiest riding in the world.

Hudson's leadership of mode is but another expression of the value that has been the first principle of Hudson manufacture since the beginning.

The resources, which in a moderate-priced car attained the highest mechanical possibilities of the day, have been brilliantly employed to create and lead a new vogue in beauty, comfort and luxurious appointment.

The wealth of quality detail you see, feel and touch—and every refinement that surrounds you—is typical and expressive of the quality that Hudson gives where character must guarantee the unseen values.

Mary L. Hermance Seeks to Recover Damages for Injuries, Bringing Suit Against Globe Indemnity Company.

The action brought by Mary L. Hermance of Ulster Park against the Globe Indemnity Company to recover damages for injuries sustained when she was injured in a bus accident on September 1, 1923, near Esopus, was continued in supreme court today.

It is alleged that a car driven by Benjamin Seides of New York in passing the bus collided with it, driving it into a tree. Mr. Seides denies it was his car. An action was brought against him and judgment secured. Mr. Seides was unable to pay the judgment and the present action is being brought to recover from the insurance company which held the insurance on the Seides car. The insurance company denies responsibility on the grounds that Seides failed to notify them of any accident in accordance with the terms of insurance. Seides denies he had an accident and therefore had nothing to notify the company about.

No. 106, Samuel Shapiro against Charles Brown, et al., was announced as settled. Frank W. Brooks for plaintiff and Brinnier, Canfield & Elsworth for defendant.

An inquest calendar made up of cases in which there will be no defense was called this morning and those cases ready to be disposed of were set down for Friday morning. The following cases were placed on the inquest calendar: Nos. 132, 148, 150, 295, 320, 321, 344, 428.

LARGE ENROLLMENT AT STUDER GYM.

A considerable number have enrolled in the classes for instruction in swimming, boxing and gymnastics at the gymnasium in Sahler's Sanitarium, 61 Wall street, being conducted by Carl J. Studer. Mr. Studer also has a Turkish bath department and gives Battle Creek treatments in conjunction with running the gymnasium. The establishment is open day and night with special classes for business men.

"Doc" Studer, as he is known to many familiar with the lives of prominent boxers and their trainers, advertises his gym and baths as "A good place for tired inactive people to tone up." Mr. Studer is a retired trainer of ringmen, several of whom teached the top notches in their class. The late "Tiger" Flowers, who was managed by "Walk" Miller, trained under the supervision of "Doc" Studer for several of his fights.

Mr. Studer invites the pubic to visit his establishment to see the methods he uses to condition patrons.

Mrs. Hemans' Poem Had Foundation in Fact

Mrs. Hemans' poem, "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," which thrilled the imagination of childhood for two generations, had its origin in an actual happening that constitutes a page in history. It was while Napoleon's expedition to Egypt was in progress that the English sent Lord Nelson, the sea's most famous warrior, to annihilate the fleet. This Nelson so nearly accomplished that only four of the French vessels escaped sinking or capture.

A bullet had ended the life of the French admiral, and the flagship was wrapped in flames. But Louis Casabianca, the captain, who was wounded so badly that he could keep his feet only by clinging desperately to the rail, stoutly refused to leave his post.

All who could get into a boat or swim had deserted the flagship and its heroic captain, with the solitary exception of a boy of ten—his son. The lad had hidden behind a coil of rope until the last boat had gone, then he went to his father's side. Commands and entreaties were of no avail; the boy remained, supporting the wounded man with an arm about his waist. The English sailors forgot the lust of battle, checked their fire, and cheered, and some of them wept as the enemy ship settled lower in the water and finally disappeared beneath the waves.—Detroit News.

Ranks Farm Children Above Those City Bred

Wellington, N. Z.—Farm children are superior to city-reared children, says a national report on a survey of the physical growth and mental attainment of the boys and girls of New Zealand. Superiority of farmers' children was most pronounced at the age of thirteen.

The survey included 20,000 town and country children ranging in age from 7 to fourteen, and was carried out by Dr. Ada Paterson, director of the health department's division of school hygiene, and Dr. E. Marsden, assistant director of education.

Grouping the boys and girls in accordance with the fathers' occupations, the investigators ascertained that the children of the farmers were tallest, being closely followed by those of professional men. Regarding weight, it was shown that farmers' children were markedly heavier than the average, the difference increasing with age, while the children of professional men, though above the average in height, showed no excess in weight.

Total result of the survey showed that the average height and average weight of children of good mental attainment were greater than in the case of those of inferior ability.

Must Pay Costs For New Trial

Judge Staley Sets New Date In Osterhoudt Action, On Condition Plaintiff Pays Costs Thus Far Incurred.

An action brought by Fred C. Osterhoudt, an infant, by guardian, against Charles Rothberg will be tried in supreme court March 26. The action brought for negligence was on the day calendar Wednesday but owing to the absence of Judge William D. Cunningham, who was engaged in trial work in another court, the case was set down for a definite date. Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., who appeared for John E. Mack, attorney of record for defendant, objected to a postponement of the case and asked for necessary costs so far incurred. The case he argued had been placed on the calendar by plaintiff and he had brought witnesses for defendant here from New York under the impression that the case would be tried when reached. Judge Cunningham's motion to put the case over on the grounds that he was engaged came as a surprise to defendant according to Mr. Brinnier.

Judge Staley agreed to set the case down for trial on March 26 on condition the plaintiff pay necessary costs thus far incurred in bringing witnesses to court or else the case will be put over the term on payment by plaintiff of all costs and expenses. If the case is moved over the term and the costs are not paid at the expiration of the present term of court the case will be dismissed.

Mr. Brinnier stated that two of his witness were school boys who could not leave school next week on account of certain examinations.

Another Crowd At Dollar Day

Continuance of Dollar Day Brought Out Many Shoppers Today Who Purchased Many Special Offerings.

The uncertainty of the weather Wednesday prevented many people from participating in Kingston's Uptown Merchants' big Dollar Day Sale and in order to give those people a chance the sale was extended through today when bargains equal to those of Wednesday were offered.

Merchants who participated in the Dollar Day Sale Wednesday found that there had been an unusually good response to their sale announcements. However, the weather was not all that could be desired in the early hours of the day and many people from out of town delayed, on account of the weather, their shopping trip. In order that everyone might have an opportunity to benefit by Dollar Day the merchants agreed to continue the sale today.

The response to this generous continuation of sale prices brought out many shoppers today. The early rush was not so great as on Wednesday but when the continuation of the sale was announced many took the opportunity to benefit.

Stocks depleted by Wednesday's buying were replaced and again today the shoppers found that the merchants were giving real values. In order to encourage the late shoppers many special offerings were made today where the regular Dollar Day stock had become exhausted.

File Tax Returns Before Midnight

Federal Income Tax returns for the year 1927 must be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue, accompanied by the amount of the tax, or one-fourth of it, if it is to be paid in installments, by midnight tonight.

Auditors are at the court house assisting taxpayers in making out their returns. Taxpayers in this district may send by mail their returns to the Collector of Internal Revenue, Albany, N. Y., making check or money order payable to the "Collector of Internal Revenue."

Every individual whose net income for 1927 was $1,500 or more, if single, or $3,500 or more if married, or a gross income for the calendar year of $5,000 or over, must file a return, even if he pays no tax.

Towing Season Starts Saturday

The towing season on the Hudson river will be officially opened on Saturday, weather conditions permitting, when a tow will leave this port for down river points and a tow will arrive here from New York. The ice in the Hudson river is now on the move for the warm weather of Monday and Tuesday followed by the rain and fog of Wednesday assisted in breaking up the ice which had been gradually wearing thin under the rays of the sun.

The Central Hudson Line boats have been operating daily between this port and New York for several weeks and that fact has helped to break up the ice between Kingston and Poughkeepsie.

Today off Kingston Point there was open water with a little floating ice to be seen.

Our Growing Population.

Used Flour Bags Make Luncheon Cloth, Doilies

The old-fashioned white linen cloth is an obsolete today in millions of American homes as spinning and soap making. Instead, for all except the most formal occasions, luncheon cloths and doily sets are used which effect a great saving not only in washing and ironing but also in the original cost.

As attractive a set as the most fastidious housemaker could wish for can be made for so little as 25 or 30 cents, with as much or as little handiwork as one feels like putting into it. The materials used for the set are two or three or more used flour bags, which a baker will let one have for a few cents. The material is soft, closely woven, extremely durable and can be boiled if necessary to remove stains. It is much better in quality than any goods usually to be bought by the yard in any of the shops at the same price.

There is no need to be discouraged by the stamping on the bags when you get them. The most flamboyant design can be removed by covering it with lard or soaking overnight in kerosene and then washing out in lukewarm water.

The goods is about 36 by 42 inches, so that a yard square tea cloth can be cut from it, or a number of individual place cloths, round, oblong or oval, depending on the shape of the table on which they are to be used. Brilliant peasant colors—red and blue—can be used for buttonholing the edges and working simple but striking cross-stitch designs in the corners. Other suggestions are to crochet the edges with cream color thread and insert fillet medallions, or use some attractive floral design worked outline stitch, lazy-daisy and french knots. For breakfast use a colored border of gingham or linene is suitable, using a two-inch hem for the large center cloth and a half-inch hem for the napkins.

Elegance Marks Mode for the Present Season

The evening mode this season is of supreme elegance, of great formality and dignity, advises an article in the Delineator. According to the women's monthly, it is very feminine in appearance, brilliantly conceived and executed.

"In general," says the Delineator, "the smart evening frock is both long and short, due to an erratic hemline which is high in some places and low in others, jagged with points of drapery or elliptical as in the bouffant dresses where the longer line rounds down in back. The decolletage of the season is the low cut oval. This is new and flattering, but V and square lines are continued and the latter is particularly distinguished when held by jeweled shoulder straps. Jewels are, in fact, very much a part of all evening dress. White frocks and black frocks depend on them for relief and not only are there necklaces, bracelets and belt and shoulder buckles, but dresses are embroidered with jewels, notably in neckline lines. There is much drapery in the mode, mostly with a left-side tendency, and skirts flare, some of them in most original ways.

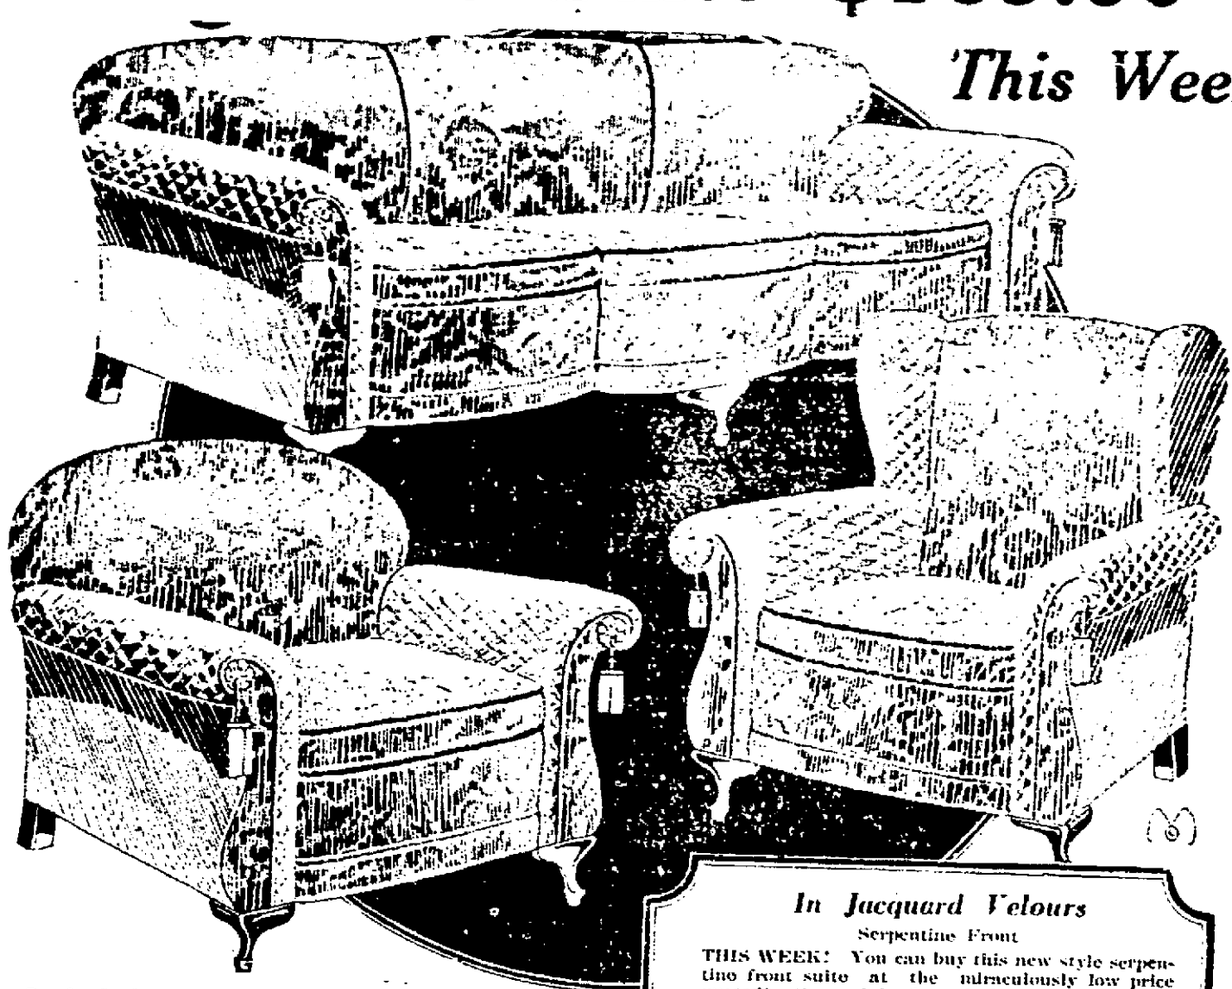

"As to the evening wrap," continues the Delineator, "it is very smart to match it to the frock, but if the wrap matches one of the frocks of the wardrobe and harmonizes with the others, that is quite in good style and much less extravagant as this means one wrap instead of a series of them. White is, and has been for two seasons, the first color for evening, its continued vogue explained by the fact that a white frock and sun-bronzed skin is an intriguing combination. All black, relieved by rhinestones on the frock and by ermine on the wrap, follows white in the scale of evening colors, after which come pastel shades, used so much by Vionnet. Gray and yellow are sometimes seen and are interesting because they are new. The evening frock this season is made of transparent velvet, metallic fabrics, georgette, chiffon, lace, flowered or gauze lame or tulle—tulle with a gold dot is new. The evening wrap may be a coat or cape of fur, velvet, metallic fabric or brocade. The little evening jackets that are so useful in chilly rooms, or as a means of turning an evening gown into one for afternoon are of the fabric of the frock."

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 15, 1928.

The relative good manners of American theatre audiences as compared with England is recognized by the Prince of Wales when, in disapproving of the frequent hissing and booing at first night performances in London, he says that if a play "is considered not so good" in America, "there is no noise from the audience; they just fade away." Acknowledging the basis in fact for this tribute to the more dignified American reserve, the New York Times nevertheless submits that personal behavior in American theatres is not all that it might be, saying in part: "The well-known propensity of movie fans to read aloud the titles has spread to the theatre. It is not at all uncommon to hear ladies whose appearance is impeccable explaining to each other that the hero, who is seen putting on his hat, is going out."

MEXICAN IMMIGRATION.

The American people in general, as well as American workingmen, are not understood to favor heavy immigration from Mexico. Only certain of our large employers of labor are supposed to be partisans of such immigration. Yet our present immigration quota law seems to have been framed to meet the wishes of the latter, or at any rate, to be based on the theory that Latin-Americans are more eligible as immigrants than the most desirable of Europeans. It is notable that of the 335,175 immigrants admitted for permanent residence in this country during the last fiscal year 66,766, or one-fifth of all, were Mexicans. There being no quota restriction on immigration across the Rio Grande, the Mexican entrants were twice the combined totals from eleven of the less desirable countries of Europe. And we receive more Mexican immigrants annually than from any of the European countries, such as Great Britain, that are favored under the law.

The Box bill now being considered by the House Immigration committee proposes the same quota restrictions for countries of the Western Hemisphere as for Europe. If it had been a law in force during the last fiscal year Mexican entrants would have been cut down from 66,766 to 1,537. The increase of unemployment in this country can hardly fail to win many votes for the Box bill, or something similar, particularly in view of the fact there appear to be no convincing arguments in favor of preferring Western Hemisphere nationalities so far above the best immigrant material obtainable from Europe.

THAT BALTIMORE BANQUET.

The Villard dinner in Baltimore was headed for trouble just as soon as it became known that guests of both colors were expected to sit at the festive board. It seems that Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the New York Nation, insisted that black as well as white subscribers to his periodical should be present. Thereupon the local management of the affair would have faced serious embarrassment even if one hotel after another had not canceled its engagement to provide the dinner. In an editorial, moderate in tone, the Baltimore Sun says that, "knowing the firmly established convictions and practice of this community with respect to social contacts between the two races, and knowing Mr. Villard's views, the dinner never should have been undertaken"—and further that it would have been wiser if "a small group of Negroes had not elected to force the issue."

Presumably Mr. Villard was convinced that he was right, and it may be admitted that he was in a sense true to his family traditions. His grandfather, William Lloyd Garrison, burned a copy of the Constitution of the United States in the presence of an abolitionist gathering at Framingham, Mass., denouncing the venerable instrument as "a covenant with hell and a league with death" because of its provision for negro slavery. Technically and under the "supreme law of the land" this was revolutionary, even "red", but the moral sentiment behind it grew and spread until the Northern States one after another nullified by legislative enactment the Federal fugitive slave law, which was merely a more detailed statement of the provision in the Constitution itself for the surrender of fugitive slaves to their owners. This also was constitutional, just as would be now the legislative nullification by the West States of the Volstead act, which would be an indirect nullification of the Eighteenth amendment by the Constitution.

But admittedly the members of the legislatures inspired or fired by a moral sentiment, and their answer to their critics in the North or in the Constitution providing South may that there is a higher law than the Constitution. But there is a marked difference between the issue presented by Mr. Villard at Baltimore and the issue so radically forced by his grandfather. No similar moral principle was involved in the latter case. There is no moral sentiment or law that compels people to sit together at a dinner if they do not wish to, either within the ranks of white or black society or in a mixed gathering of both. People are not only free under law and custom but have an inalienable right to choose their social contacts, and that right will always be exercised by people of every color or condition.

FAMILY PHYSICIAN A PSYCHO-ANALYST.

You are reading every day of the wonderful work our nerve specialists are doing in what is called psycho-analysis.

As you know, somewhere in the patient's make up is something that is upsetting his mental balance, and making him unfit to do his best in his work, in his home, or in his daily contact with other people. And so the psycho-analyst, after a few consultations, is usually able to locate the matter that is causing the mental disturbance, often something that occurred in childhood, and by drawing it out into the light, and showing the patient that it is not an unusual thing in any way, he gets the patient to get the same viewpoint, and the trouble is corrected.

I often think that the family physician of former days was a great psycho-analyst, and if there were more of the old time all round family physicians there would be less need for the psycho-analyst.

Why?

Because the family doctor knew the members of the household, knew them from birth, knew practically everything that went on in that household. Further, what he did not know he was soon told by some member of the family.

Why?

Because the family trusted him and he became practically the adviser of the household.

And the psycho-analyst tells us that it is often the first meeting with the patient that enables him to get his confidence, and while it may take two or three consultations before he has really learned the trouble, nevertheless it is because the patient trusts him that he gets results.

If he cannot get the patient's confidence he can't get results. My point then is that if the family physician, when he gets a case where he suspects some mental disturbance is affecting some organ or organs of the body, instead of handing the patient over to the nerve specialist immediately, would endeavor to try and right the matter in the patient's mind, he would save the patient and his family a lot of time, worry, and money.

CHERRY GROWING.

Fertilizer and Pruning Tests Show Way To Increased Production.

Increased production has been obtained in Early Richmond, Montmorency, and English Morello sour cherries in experiments with fertilizers and methods of pruning conducted over a period of several years by H. B. Tukey, horticulturist of the Geneva Experiment Station, and reported by him in Bulletin No. 541 of the Station, now available free of charge upon request.

Although these tests were made in the Hudson River Valley, the results are applicable to all sour cherry regions in the state, says Mr. Tukey. His report gives a detailed account of the fertilizer treatments and pruning operations that gave the best results.

"Average, moderately vigorous sour cherry orchards may be expected to respond to applications of nitrogenous fertilizers, even when kept clean cultivated and sown to a cover crop," says Mr. Tokey in summarizing his experiments. "No evidence has yet appeared showing any benefit from either phosperous or potassium when used alone or in combination with nitrogen or with each other.

"Because of the habit of growth of the cherry, little or no increase in fruit yield may be expected the first year that fertilizer is supplied. But where nitrogen is beneficial, the second season should see some gain and the third season still more. Increased shoot growth, greater growth of trees, larger leaf size, and delayed maturity of fruit will also follow.

"Early Richmond and Montmorency trees have a similar habit of growth and fruiting. If the trees are too high for economical picking they may be lowered by severe pruning. Pruning alone is not sufficient, however, and nitrogen should be added to stimulate severely pruned trees. The first season will probably show a slight decrease in yield, but in the second season the yield will be back to normal and by the third season treated trees will outyield untreated trees.

"English Morello trees behave in much the same way, but in this case pruning should be directed to thinning out unproductive wood and cutting back to outside internal growths. When combined with nitrogen applications this should renew the vigor of the trees and either maintain or increase yield."

PEA DISEASES.

Use of Healthy Seed Best Means of Control.

Three important diseases which have caused losses in peas grown for canning in this state are described and methods of control outlined in a recent publication by Dr. L. K. Jones plant disease specialist at the Experiment Station at Geneva, who is engaged particularly in a study of canning crops diseases.

Considerable confusion has prevailed in the past as to the exact cause of the common Ascochyta blight of peas, says Dr. Jones, and it is his opinion that three distinct diseases are involved which closely resemble each other in their outward characteristics. These diseases are known as blight, leaf and pod spot and root rot. The nature of the three diseases and the organisms which cause them are discussed in the publication, which may be had free of charge upon request.

Extensive tests of various seed treatments have led to the conclusion that satisfactory control of these diseases depends more on the use of disease-free seed than on treating infected seed. "The results show that seed produced in the semi-arid seed-growing areas of the western United States was practically free from fungous infection, while a large percentage of the seed produced in eastern North America was more or less infected with the disease organisms," says Dr. Jones.

Greenhouse and field tests show a reduced stand from diseased seed as compared with that from healthy seed. Treating seed with organic mercury dusts was more or less beneficial in increasing the percentage of stand of peas, the benefit being especially marked where the rate of infection in the seed was high and where the treated seed was planted under conditions adverse to rapid germination. Seed treatment did reduce the amount of injury from root rot, but proved of little value in checking the spread of leaf and pod spot.

"Numerous varieties of canning, market garden, and field peas were inoculated with the three organisms in an attempt to find immune or resistant varieties. The results of these tests showed that while none of the varieties were immune, some of them were much less susceptible to injury from these diseases than others."

OLDEST LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER TO RETIRE THIS MONTH.

Dunkirk, N. Y., March 15 (AP).—John T. McDonough, said to be the oldest lighthouse keeper on the Great Lakes will retire from service at the close of this month. He will be pensioned by the Government and plans to make his future home at Redondo Beach, Cal.

Mr. McDonough has been head lighthouse keeper at this port for 42 years, during which time he has never had a vacation. Among the many disasters which he recalls from his long service on the lake is the foundering of the steamer Dean Richmond, off Dunkirk, in 1891, when 18 members of the crew were drowned.

The Dean Richmond left Duluth with a cargo of copper, bound for Buffao. The copper, valued at $300,000 is lying somewhere in Lake Erie off this port, the efforts of divers to locate the metal having proved futile.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Paris—A girl athlete who rushed in where adults feared to tread, is mourned as a heroine. Madeleine Cedelle, who once put the eight pound shot 39 feet, 3 inches, rushed at two armed burglars in her home. She felled one and was shot dead by the other in front of her terrorized parents.

Augusta, Ga.—There's more than one athlete in the Cobb family. Miss Shirley Cobb has won a blue ribbon at a horse show. Her brother, Junior, is an excellent tennis player. Their dad is Ty.

New York—Mrs. Ruth Pratt, socially prominent member of the board of aldermen, is convinced that she and her colleagues are not worth the chairs they sit in. She figures it costs the city about $20,000 for each measure the board passes and that its affairs could be better handled by some other city department.

Edinburgh—When is Ireland Scotch? When he is Alex Ireland. He won the European middleweight championship from Tommy Milligan on a foul. Both are Scots.

London—Orangeade and lemonade for King Amanullah. At a banquet in the foreign office he passed up offerings of the rarest vintages.

New York—"The mayor of Delancy street" was once in need himself, so on his fiftieth birthday Kardonick Phillips, restauranteur, invited all poor hungry folks to help themselves at his expense. Some 1,200 had a first class meal, even to music and cigars.

"Be Yourself, Co-Eds," Is Warning From Teacher

"To say, 'Be yourself' seems almost absurd in this overstandardized world," Miss Ethel M. Arnold, assistant of the applied arts, Kansas State Agricultural college, tells her class in dress design. "Our educational system, our homes, even our recreations are each cut by one pattern.

"In matter of dress women are quick to realize that distinctiveness lies in individuality. Clothes must seem to belong to the wearer, they must not just be a part of the body. So you must 'know yourself' in order to 'be yourself' in the matter of dress."

Type is determined by three things—your coloring, your physique and your mental make-up, advised the instructor. Your physical make-up is important in determining your type. Are you tall and slender, short and fat, or small and slender? If slender and tall, 5 feet 8 or more—to you belong grace and dignity. If this, you can be willowy, if heavy, the stately. There is charm in curved lines and firm rounded flesh. So the tall woman may be, in the choice of her clothes, mannish or tailored, dramatic or dignified, statuesque or regallke, she must never be cute, coy or babyish.

The in-between woman does not have a problem for she may emphasize her personality without fear of interference because of oversize or undersize.

The small woman under 5 feet 8 inches is a definite class. She may be thin or chubby, jolly or quiet, prim or motherly. But whichever she is she must have simplicity and avoid extreme type styles.

The older woman will fall into type as readily as does the younger, but the more mature type will invariably have dignity added to her other characteristics.

Do your friends call you peppy and quick-witted? Be careful that your clothes are not too noisy or too vivid—it will cheapen your type. Don't try to achieve "vampish" effects which belong to the tall, dramatic type. Soft-voiced women with old fashioned charm and poise are all too few these days—so by all means hang on your own strings. Soft fabrics and subtle colors belong to her. "Whatever the type you lean most toward the point is to develop the tendency that you have," Miss Arnold begs girls not to steal Pola Negri's stuff. "It is better to 'be yourself,' a good example of your own type, than a poor imitation of some other type that seems more popular. Be curved and jolly if that is your natural type instead of spending your time trying to be flat and flippant. A wood violet is just as pleasing as a garden rose—the emphasis just happens to be on different characteristics.

What Shall I Serve?

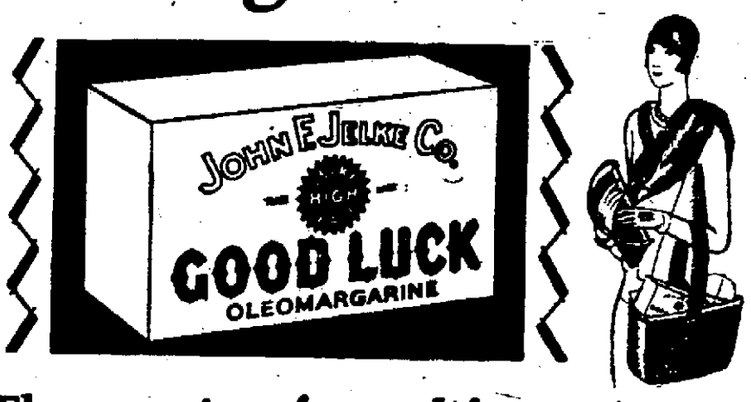

Even informal entertaining for guests who drop in for a short call requires a certain finesse which many women find difficult to acquire.. The question of refreshments often worries and frets the hostess—she finds herself beset by the thought, "What shall I serve?" There is a desire to have "something different" and yet not spend a great deal of time in the preparation.

That is where Frigidaire proves a boon in the household. Dainty desserts, frozen or chilled, a bountiful supply of ice cubes for sparkling beverages, and a cold, dry atmosphere which keeps foods fresh and full of flavor for days, are the services this electric refrigerator renders the hostess. A Frigidaire may be installed for $195 cash.

Rickrack Braid Makes Its Reappearance — Grosgrain Ribbon as Trimming for Plain and Printed Frocks

Paris—Up in grandmother's attic, you may still find some rickrack braid. In the days when it was used, it was always white cotton. Now the haute couture along the rue de la Paix have found the little saw-edge decorative enough to be used on gowns of one kind or another, and the braid is used in colors as well as in white. There is a feeling for uneven, or for broken, edges.

Another trimming that comes to mind as being decorative is heavy grosgrain ribbon as a trimming for printed as well as plain frocks. The effective method is to use three colors, one over the other, which produces a striped effect. White, black, and a bright color is a stunning color scheme. These colors are general favorites in prints, as well as white, red, and blue, and black, green, and yellow.

Miller Sœurs show a liking for black with bright sulphur yellow (the yellow being incidental) for gilets, cuffs, and things of that sort. There is also a refreshing tendency to introduce embroidered net, organdie, or lace edges on dark frocks for street wear. A navy georgette with exaggerated surplice opening outlined by ecru embroidered net is an excellent example of this. Ties at the neckline, and bows on the shoulder, between the shoulders, or at the hip continue to be used.

Vermont Flood Victims Pay

GOVERNOR JOHN E. WEEKS

While the citizens of the Mississippi valley were asking Congress for an appropriation of $300,000,000 to solve their flood problems, the sturdy citizens of Vermont through their state legislature dug into their own pockets for $8,500,000 to relieve themselves from flood damages.

This situation was revealed through an address by Governor John E. Weeks, of Vermont, who spoke over a network of eight radio stations, in The Socony Hour, last night.

"The property damage in Vermont was ten times greater than the damage in the areas affected by the flood in the Mississippi valley," he declared. "It cost each man, woman and child in Vermont eight-five dollars as against eight dollars per person in the Mississippi valley. Vermont's loss of life was twelve times greater in proportion to her population than was the loss sustained in the Mississippi valley.

"It has been authoritatively stated that never before was such complete destruction accomplished by the elements in so few hours as by the Vermont flood in November," he added. "But our sturdy people were undismayed by the terrible disaster, and today we are building for the future. Our highways and our bridges are to be repaired and replaced regardless of the tremendous cost, for we believe in Vermont and her great possibilities.

"And just a word in appreciation of the service rendered by railroads, public utilities, telephone and telegraph companies, and all business corporations such as the Standard Oil Company of New York, for their efforts in bringing relief and maintaining uninterrupted service despite the unfavorable conditions and difficulties."

The Governor alluded briefly to the scenic beauties of his state, "the Switzerland of America," and expressed the pride of Vermont in her ancestors and their achievements in her sons and daughters.

"Vermont may well be called the child of Old England and the mother of the New West," he said, "for Vermont was the first to join that union of states which had its beginnings with that intrepid and original band of thirteen free and independent units of these United States.

"Now that Vermont has a distinguished son in the White House—and we are all justly proud of his splendid service for the nation—the hardy little Green Mountain commonwealth may be encouraged to go on mothering presidents for all the states, with Calvin Coolidge serving as an example."

LAST NIGHT or the RADIO

Afternoon, early evening and very late reception Wednesday was good, but there was a period in mid evening when all the demons of the air seemed in league to annoy listeners. There was fading, distortion, blanketing and everything but the local snarling buzzers, so that even two of the Big Three were all but out of commission. At 9:30 there was a sudden change for the better and reception thereafter—at least until the time when all well behaved people retire for the night—was excellent.

The big early feature was the Soconyland Vermont Sugaring Off party, enlivened by the dialogue of Amos and Nellie and the singing of old favorites. The speech by Governor Weeks of Vermont—who, by the way, is an uncle of the Rev. Dr. Seeley of this city—will be found in another column.

It surely was Mary Ann's night on the radio. One could scarcely move the dial without hearing some quartet, tenor, baritone or almost anything but soprano pouring out his longing for the time when he would hear the church bells chime, etc., etc.

An appeal to voters of New York state to support legislation now pending in Albany will be made by Governor Alfred E. Smith in an address to be broadcast by WJZ, WGY and WHAM at 8 o'clock Friday night. Bills for which the executive will ask support are those providing for a four-year term for the governor and for establishment of a commission to examine into county government.

PHOENICIA I. O. O. F. WELCOME BROTHER SCHWARZWAELDER

Phoenicia, March 15.—Phoenicia Lodge, No. 154, I. O. O. F., planned a surprise for P. G. S. B. Schwarzwaelder who has just returned from a trip through the southern and western states. N. G. W. Van Steenburg asked Brother Schwarzwaelder to occupy the N. G.'s chair and after the regular business was transacted P. G. William Smith was asked to escort Brother Schwarzwaelder to the center of the lodge room, where P. G. A. Whispell, with reference to the hard work and noble effort of this brother to create an interest in the lodge and to secure worthy members, presented to P. G. Schwarzwaelder a past grand jewel in token of esteem the members have for him, and as a gift of appreciation of the work he has done for the good of the order.

Brother Schwarzwaelder was surprised and his emotion stirred deeply. When he could control his voice, in well chosen sentences he thanked the lodge for the token, and in his businesslike and tactful way, began to plan further advances for Odd Fellowship. To make the evening complete refreshments were served and a social hour spent in honor of his return home and to his lodge.

"No, a legless woman."

The celebrated soprano was in the middle of her solo when little Johnny said to his mother, referring to the conductor of the orchestra:

Here is a woman at the age of 107 does all her own cooking. Perhaps that is the reason she has lived to be 107.

"What will the operation of lifting my face cost, doctor?" inquired the seeker for beauty.

"That's robbery!" she exclaimed. "Isn't there something less expensive I could try?"

"You might try wearing a veil," he replied brutally.

The best meal you ever cooked

"ONE day I heard of putting Gulden's Mustard in my cooking. I tried it in beef loaf and mixed it in before I served my spinach. The results were delicious—something new in flavoring. My husband said, 'It's the best meal you ever cooked!'"

Spread Gulden's over meats before roasting or broiling. Mix a few drops in vegetables while cooking. This adds a new, richer flavor. Write for free Recipe Book, Charles Gulden, Inc., Dept. F, 48 Elizabeth St., New York City.

Conservation of State Game

Albany, March 15.—What New York is doing to improve hunting and fishing by establishing game sanctuaries, stocking covers with game and waters with fish was told by Herbert P. Prescott, secretary to the Conservation Department in a radio talk broadcast from WABC last night.

This talk concluded a series of four which were given under the auspices of the Izaak Walton League dealing with conservation accomplishments in New York state, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut.

New York state has established a number of game sanctuaries and is laying out additional ones as fast as funds will permit. On this subject Mr. Prescott said:

"With the rapid increase in the number of hunters, improved facilities for getting about, the posting of farm lands against hunters and the decrease in forest cover, the establishment of game sanctuaries and public hunting grounds has become necessary and we are meeting this need as rapidly as funds and offerings of suitable land will permit. We now have three state refuges and are completing the establishment of two others. In the forest preserve we have one of 4,000 acres in Hamilton county, and another of 2,000 in Essex county. In Chenango county, 4,500 acres have been set aside as a game refuge, public shooting ground and demonstration forest and in Rensselaer and Oswego counties, other large tracts are being acquired for a similar purpose. Funds for this purpose are provided from the Conservation Fund which is made up of one-half of the money received from the sale of licenses. Appropriations from this fund are made by the Legislature for projects for the improvement of hunting and fishing, such as game refuges, rearing stations, the importation of new game birds and biological surveys of the state's watersheds which will be of great assistance in perfecting an intelligent policy for stocking the waters with fish. Two such surveys already have been completed, the Genesee river and the Oswego river watersheds, the former including all the Finger Lakes region.

"This year's program takes in the Erie-Niagara watershed. There are 11 watersheds in the state and about ten years will be required to complete this work, but when it is done, the state will be in possession of all the information necessary upon which to base a thoroughly intelligent policy for stocking our lakes and streams. We have in the state 2,295 lakes, ponds and reservoirs, making a total water area of 1,650 square miles, or about one million acres. Seventy-eight lakes have an area of one square mile or more, the largest lake wholly within the boundaries of the state being Oneida, with an area of 79.5 square miles. Lakes and ponds in the Adirondacks have an aggregate shore line of 1,075 miles and some of the most famous trout streams in the country are to be found in the Adirondacks and Catskills.

"Nearly twenty years ago, New York state began the propagation of game birds as an experiment. A thoroughly competent man was placed in charge of the game bird farm and given a free hand to produce results. He did. Today we have four game bird farms from which last year we distributed 15,068 live birds and 127,809 eggs to sportsmen's clubs and farmers. The total expenditure on the four farms was $72,620.38. This included the new farm at Ithaca which was not yet in full operation. The cost of the three farms which were in full operation and from which 11,459 birds and 120,519 eggs were distributed was $47,322.70. Just how successful these farms have been in stocking the covers with pheasants may be judged from the take of those birds in the last ten years; the figures given are not estimates but are taken from the stubs of hunting licenses. In 1918, the total number of pheasants taken by licensed hunters was 35,855; in 1922 it was 94,547, and in 1926, the last year for which the complete game returns have been compiled, it was 156,262. At the rate of increase indicated by these figures, this last year's take was more than 200,000 and there are bills now in the Legislature to extend the open season and increase the bag limit.

"To offset the decline of the ruffed grouse which has been serious for the past three years, we are trying another experiment in the introduction of game birds. We are importing Hungarian partridges and as these birds cannot be propagated successfully on game bird farms, we are releasing them in favorable localities throughout the state. They are somewhat smaller than the ruffed grouse, are strong fliers and promise to make a splendid addition to our game birds. We have been taking all offerings of first-class stock for more than a year and up to date have secured about 2,500 birds. Reports from localities where birds have been released show that they are breeding well and the indications are that in five years they will be sufficiently well established to warrant an open season."

RADIO "GOSHEND TO MEN 200 MILES FROM CIVILIZATION

Medina, N. Y., March 15 (AP).—While the "home folks" watch with anxious eyes when the thermometer drops to 10 degrees above zero, James F. Christy, 29 year-old son of James Christy, New York Central Railroad baggagemaster here, is up in British Columbia with the snow ten feet deep and the mercury standing at 40 below.

Mr. Christy was employed for several years by The Associated Press at Buffalo, and is now a telegraph operator for the Dominion Telegraph Company, in the Interior Department of the Canadian Government.

Hazelton, B. C., the nearest settlement to the post where Mr. Christy, with only one companion is "pounding brass," is 300 miles distant, and the two men have not visited it in nearly four years.

The telegraph line upon which Christy works runs to Dawson City, Yukon, and is the only means of communication other than radio between those in the far north and the outside world.

According to a letter received a few days ago by his father, there are eight cabins along the line, about 150 miles apart, and Christy is in the eighth cabin. His companion is a lineman. Messages to the outside world are relayed during certain hours of the day, leaving much time for recreation.

Letters take many weeks to reach Christy, but he declares he and his companion have found their radio set a "Godsend" and that they thoroughly enjoy the programs. Sunday services, according to Christy, are listened to as attentively as in a church, and the best music is enjoyed.

Once each year the company sends in a supply of canned foods to supplement the food captured by the men in the forest and stream. Christy says he has become quite efficient in curing pelts and making fur garments.

A doctor says we are all more or less crazy, but we who take our cold baths in summer instead of winter are probably a little less crazy.

Grange Lecturers Gather at Cornell

Ithaca, March 15.—Grange lecturers from all parts of New York state met at Cornell University yesterday to begin a week's session and to the lecturers of the state colleges of agriculture and home economics. New York has five subordinate granges and each is entitled to as many representatives.

Courses which are offered during the week include discussions of community projects for grange discussion of agricultural problems, how to develop leadership through grange activities, grange problems dealing with home economics, public welfare, and recreation. Three courses are given each day of the corresponding hour, for example, dramatics come at 8 o'clock each morning.

The sessions on how to develop leadership through grange activities will be under the supervision of Jennie Buell of Ann Arbor, Michigan, editor of the Lecturer's Page in the National Grange Monthly and author of The Grange Master and the Grange Lecturer.

On Tuesday Miss Buell will discuss the history of the grange and the grange's objectives. She requests that those who attend the school bring problems from their own granges, which problems will furnish material for discussion during the rest of the week.

Recreation Too.

A class in recreation each afternoon will be under the supervision of Professor R. B. Tom of Ohio State University. He will show how to use games, music and other forms of recreation and he will explain why they are beneficial and what are some of the principles that should be followed in using them.

Other persons who will have part in the school are A. R. Mann, dean of the colleges of agriculture and home economics; Martha Van Rensselaer, director of the college of home economics who will be in charge of sessions in which home economics subjects will be discussed; Mary E. Duthie, in charge of dramatics; G. F. Warren, professor of agricultural economics; who will discuss agricultural problems; G. E. Peabody, public speaker; R. A. Felton and Dwight Sanderson, all members of the staff of Cornell University.

On Monday evening, the college of home economics is giving a reception for the lecturers at which time Dean Mann and Miss Van Rensselaer will speak. On Thursday evening, the second annual banquet will be held at Prudence Risley Hall under the direction of the state lecturer of Lowville. Friday evening, members of the class in dramatics and the Morris Chapel Social and Dramatic Club, Tompkins county, will present one-act plays.

Miss Arthur will be present and will have charge of the school with the department of rural organization. At the first school, a year ago, 128 granges were represented.

U. S. HAS FULL-TIME CEREMONIAL OFFICER

Washington, March 15 (AP).—For the first time, the government now has a full time ceremonial officer.

James C. Dunn has been appointed head of the new protocol division of the department of state, through which in the future all matters relating to questions of ceremony and courtesy will be handled.

When royalty and foreign dignitaries visit the United States, arrangements for their reception and entertainment will be made by the new agency. Preparations for miscellaneous appointments and presentations of ambassadors and ministers at the White House, questions of diplomatic immunity and arrangements for all international conferences will be referred to it.

The new division will settle questions of precedence for puzzled hostesses. It will explain that ambassadors and ministers must be seated at dinners ahead of congressmen and the speaker of the house ahead of the cabinet and members of the senate. It will serve as an authority on the hundred and one other formalities so important in capital social life.

In the past these matters have been referred to various heads of geographical divisions in the department.

FOOTPRINTS TRAP CEYLON CRIMINALS

Colombo, Ceylon, March 15 (AP).—Ceylon's footprint bureau for keeping tab on criminals has proved a tremendous success. Even the finger print expert of Scotland Yard in London has written here for details of the scheme.

The footprint bureau was conceived by Colombo police officials because most Ceylonese go barefooted the year round.

The system of identification has been developed on the same lines as those used by finger print experts, and it has been found possible to identify persons from the ridges of the foot.

Natives under arrest so far have offered no objection to giving an impression of their feet. Most of them consider it a compliment.

To Practice Teachings.

St. Paul, March 15 (AP).—After fourteen years of telling others how to do it, W. P. Kirkwood, professor of rural journalism at the University of Minnesota College of Agriculture, plans to devote a year to running a country weekly.

STUDEBAKER SALES LARGEST IN HISTORY

Both January and February set new high marks in purchases by public!

SOUTH BEND, IND., Mar. 8.—Studebaker sales continue to climb to new goals of achievement! The number of Studebaker-built automobiles delivered to owners by dealers in the United States during the month just closed, was the largest of any February in history and 31% in excess of February, 1927.

Coming immediately after the greatest January sales in Studebaker history, this continued flood of public preference for Studebaker is particularly significant.

Motorists appreciate Studebaker's advanced engineering—an automobile you can drive 40 miles an hour the day the new car is delivered—that requires lubrication but once in 2500 miles—that holds all the highest speed and endurance records for fully equipped stock cars, regardless of power or price. The public has rightly interpreted these achievements as conclusive evidence of Studebaker's championship value due to One-Profit manufacture.

By all means see and drive these new Studebaker and Erskine cars! Know the feel of championship power at the touch of your toe! Know the results of Studebaker's advanced engineering, tested on Studebaker's million-dollar proving ground. You'll realize then, if you know cars, that Studebaker stands for stability—76 years of it!

Schoharie Probes Bridge Collapse

Schoharie, N. Y., March 15 (AP).—Schoharie county authorities were prepared today to begin an investigation into the bridge collapse here yesterday that plunged 30 persons into a stream, brought serious injury to four men and resulted in minor injuries to nine others.

The investigators had before them the stories of two groups. One of them said that the weight of a large crowd watching the salvage of a truck from a hole in the bridge floor caused the collapse. The other group maintained that the sudden strain thrown on the structure when the truck tore loose from lifting tackle was responsible.

Half of the 300 foot west span of the bridge crossing the Schoharie creek plunged 40 feet into the stream. Precipitated with it were all but a few of the group gathered to watch efforts of the wrecking crew working on the truck.

The majority of those who fell with the bridge were able to scramble ashore over the wreckage but a dozen persons were pulled from the water and from the crumpled span by state troopers and those summoned to the scene by the sound of the collapse.

Several of those whose injuries were considered serious were taken to Albany Hospital. There it was found that at least one man, John Sherlock, was in a critical condition, having suffered a fractured skull.

Great Heat Required to Consume Diamond

Although diamonds are among the hardest substances known, they are composed of carbon, and if heated sufficiently in air they will burn.

"Diamonds," says a geologist, "are stated in all authoritative works to be unaffected by heat except at very high temperature (800 degrees Centigrade) such as one would not expect in an ordinary burning building. But it must not be forgotten that in some extensive conflagrations such temperatures may be reached."

A diamond expert says if diamonds are exposed to fire in contact with air and great heat they will be destroyed.

"Diamonds," he says, "if heated and placed in oxygen will be entirely consumed. They are not likely to be cracked by heat, but the surface will gradually be eaten away, become corroded, becoming white or gray, and if exposed long enough they will be entirely consumed."

Cuban Independence

Cuba is an independent republic. She attained her independence of Spain by the treaty of Paris, December 1, 1899, which ended the Spanish-American war. A constitution was adopted in 1901. The congress of the United States authorized the President to hand over the government to the Cuban people on the condition that the so-called Platt amendment adopted by congress March 2, 1901, be accepted. This amendment provided that the Cuban republic should never enter into any compact with a foreign power that would impair her independence; that she would contract no excessive debts, and that the Cuban government carry out certain plans for the welfare of the island.

Instructing the Blind

The first thought or purpose of building up special institutions for the instruction of the blind seem to have occurred to benevolent persons in New England, New York and Pennsylvania almost simultaneously. The New York institution for the Blind was incorporated April 22, 1831. On March 15, 1832, Dr. John D. Russ began the education of three pupils. The progress of the school was at first slow for want of an efficient head to direct its affairs. The Pennsylvania institution which is now one of the foremost in the world, was founded in 1833. Subsequently other schools were opened in the various states.

Place in the Sun

Taking it literally, Kaiser Wilhelm's figurative phrase, "a place in the sun," describes the United States Since the acquisition of outlying dependencies after the Spanish-American war, it has always been daytime somewhere under the Stars and Stripes. And surveys have now been far enough completed to indicate that even in our territory within North America it is always sun-up. When the sun is setting at Attu, the farthest of the Aleutians, it is also rising in Maine at Eastport and Grand Manan.

Dad's Smile Evaporated

The slangy young woman was holding a conversation with her mother and dad. In the course of the talk when something which they told her surprised her exceedingly, she exclaimed: "Well, I'm a monkey's uncle!"

Mother remonstrated, but dad was highly amused and said jokingly: "My dear, you could never be a monkey's uncle—now you might be a monkey's aunt!"

"But, dad," said the slangy one putting an affectionate hand on his arm, "wouldn't you rather have me say 'I'm a monkey's uncle,' than 'I'm a monkey's pup'?" And the slangy young lady beat a hasty retreat.

Artistic Colony

Barbizon is the name of a French village near the forest of Fontainebleau. The village gave its name to a school of artists. It was an outcome of the conflict between the classical and romantic schools of painting which occupied the first half of the Nineteenth century. The Barbizon school took nature as a guide. Jean Francois Millet, leader in the rustic genre, was one of the notable members of this school. Pierre Etienne Theodore Rousseau, French landscape painter, retired to Barbizon in 1833 and spent there the latter part of his life.

No Cause in Keefe Action

A verdict of no cause of action was returned Wednesday in the action brought by Mrs. Charles Keefe for injuries sustained when her automobile was struck by a truck of Edward T. Medill on Broadway in January, 1927. A similar verdict was returned in the action brought by her husband to recover for loss of services. She alleged that her back and neck was injured requiring daily medical attention for several months and involving a doctor's bill of some $500 in addition to moneys spent to hire assistance in her home. Judge Harry E. Schirick and Thomas F. Coughlin appeared for Mrs. Keefe and A. J. Cook for defendant.

Victorian Styles Are to Be on New Fashion List

The Victorian motif is exerting a decided influence on the new Paris fashions, says Bettina Bedwell in Liberty.

Victoria reigned in England for more than sixty years, so that Paris modes have a large past from which to choose fashion inspiration of that epoch, from the fichus, puffed sleeves, whaleboned bodice, and bouffant skirts of the forties to the princess frocks and shirtwaists of the naughty nineties.

Like most descendants, these new styles produce exactly no feature of their progenitors. They let you know that they have a romantic past without going into details about it. However, it is worth while to watch this Victorian trend, because you are going to see more of it with the spring styles.

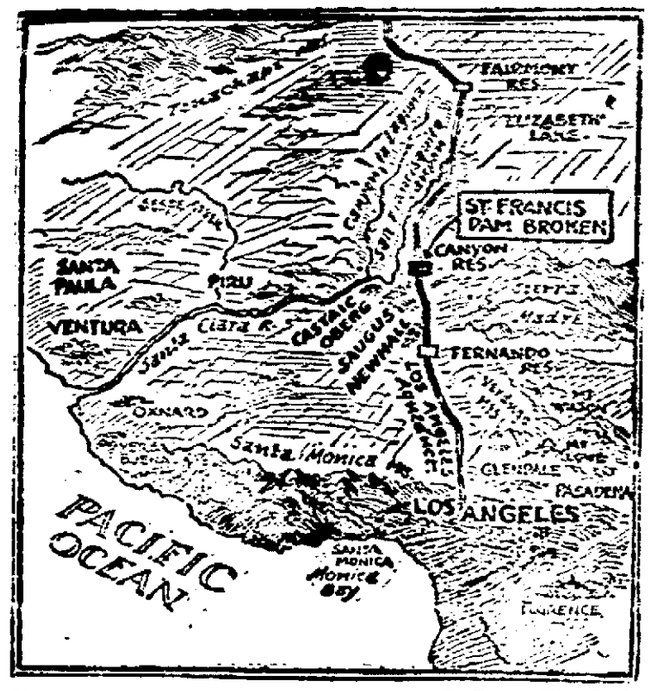

Turk, 154, Looking for Twelfth Wife

Constantinople.—Zaro Agha, who claims to be one hundred fifty-four years old, is about to take his twelfth wife.

The self-styled longevity champion of the world is recuperating from a slight illness in a Constantinople hospital and the aged Kurd asserts that his recovery would have been much more rapid if it had not been for the visits of his "old woman," whose age of ninety-eight has begun to make her a bore and a burden to the sprightly centenarian. He vows he will divorce her as soon as he is released from the hospital and has offered his hand and heart through the Turkish press to any moderately pretty and young woman.

This is the first time that the old man has been a patient in a hospital. Despite this temporary illness, he is still so stalwart that he plans soon to return to his job at the city hall, where he is head doorkeeper.

FARMERS OF ICELAND RECLAIM WASTE LAND

Reykjavik, Iceland, March 15 (AP).—Icelandic agriculture is entering a new phase.

Rational cultivation of the land is now a national slogan, while formerly there was very little cultivation of the soil.

The surroundings of Reykjavik afford a striking example. Land reclamation has gone on for the last five years in quite a feverish tempo. Bogs have been changed into green meadows, and all kind of agricultural experiments have been undertaken, some of them with great success. Things that Icelanders themselves had sworn would never be able to grow thrive wonderfully well.

Eight miles from Reykjavik there has been established the largest farm in Iceland. Formerly it was a barren waste of bogs and moor, interspersed here and there by small holdings. All this the new owner has turned into wonderful grassland able to feed a large number of cattle.

Spring Forest Fire Dangers

When the last snow melts in March and the fallen leaves of the previous autumn dry in the sun which is daily climbing higher, and in the strong breezes of this month; is usually the worse of the two periods of hazard from brush and woods fires in the deciduous woodlands of the northeastern states. It is a time in which all those who go into the woods, whether hikers, campers, fishermen or motor tourists, should be particularly careful of all sources of fire, for luncheon or evening fires for cooking or warmth, for picnic luncheons along the roadsides, or for discarded matches, lighted cigarettes or cigars, or emptied pipes.

From mid March to the first of May, there is a season of four to six weeks when brush fires are all too common, many of which, driven by a strong breeze, may spread over hundreds of acres of woodland, and cause damage which Nature cannot repair for years. Even if a burned area appears to be only charred on the ground, there is damage to the base of the trees which weakens their further existence, for the surface burning opens fissures in the bark to admit insect invaders and leads to increasing weakness and early death, or prevents them from becoming normal thrifty specimens.

The soil is affected, too, by the destruction of the cover of vegetable humus, on which plant life largely depends, and even light burnings, yearly repeated, destroy this vegetable soil, and uncover the raw, decomposed rock underneath, which takes many generations of plant life and decay to make livable for herbs and shrubs and trees, and which is liable to swift erosion on slopes which in heavy spring rains will sadly scar a hillside and force nature to begin all over again.

Furthermore, the rarer and more delicate wild flowers are seriously damaged by brush fires. The succulent spring plants, hepatica, bloodroot, trilliums, spring beauty, anemone and fawn lily and the exquisite early orchids, like the purple lady's slipper and the showy orchids, which put up their leaf and flower buds through a brown covering of dead leaves, are scorched to death for the season, and may by repeated burnings, be exterminated over such an area. Spring fires tend to destroy the earlier flowers, so that there will be left, about the charred butts of the trees, only those species which arise later, after the fire danger is over; species interesting enough in their summer associations, but not of the virginal beauty of the April blooms.

Another kind of harm is the destruction of the eggs and young of ground nesting birds, baked in the nest or burned to death when they are helpless to move. Partridge or ruffed grouse, are particularly sufferers. If spring comes early and the grouse have started nesting in April, and the month is dry and fire burns over their coverts, one will find clutches of eggs roasted and cracked where they were laid. The parents can fly before the flames and escape, and they may start a brood or they may be discouraged for the season. Other ground living creatures may suffer likewise, especially the young which are born at this time, and they may be starved if they escape burning, by the loss of early green forage charred by the fires.

All who are lured out into the country by the returning spring should be as careful of fires as if they were in their own homes. Picnickers on the roadside, in public parks or private woodlands, should build fires only in specified places. It would be better not to build any at all, which would be no hardship, for heat retaining containers take less time and trouble for warm drink or food. If a fire is made, it should be extinguished with plenty of water or earth and care should be taken that no dry leaves or grass or plant stalks remain near the embers.

Strict laws against building fires without permission exist in all of the nearby states, and they may be invoked by public agencies or private owners with severe penalties. In New Jersey, no one may build fires in the open without written permission by the local warden. The pine country in southern New Jersey is particularly liable to fire, because spring comes earlier there, and the pine woods have been repeatedly set back for years by blazes due to carelessness. Later the fire danger extends to northern New Jersey and the lower Hudson valley in New York, and lasts until early in May, when the trees put forth their leaves and the hazard is over for the summer. Long Island also has an early spring forest fire season, which has sadly reduced the former heavy timber found there two centuries ago.

In great public preserves, like the Harriman State Park in the Highlands of the Hudson, and its other divisions along the river from the Palisades to Storm King, and its extensions westward into the Ramapo Mountains, extensive precautions are necessary in the spring fire season, to preserve the forest beauty of this great playground of forty-five thousand acres. The management gives hikers and campers and picnickers the utmost possible freedom in building fires, and in the more remote areas, on the trails, trusts to their cooperation in locating them where they will be safe and in putting them out afterward. It maintains a strict patrol of its highway and secondary roads from mid March to early May, with motorcycle rangers, mobile pumps and tanks, and other devices to cope with blazes as soon as they are discovered and reported. Motorists and hikers using the roads and trails will do a service to themselves and to all, in keeping the park's beauty green, by building fires only at the frequent and convenient picnicking places along the automobile highways or, on the trails, by either avoiding luncheon fires altogether, or building them on bare ledges or in rocky fireplaces on mineral soil, and by putting out the least smouldering embers with plenty of water. And if they discover the slightest blaze, due perhaps to a carelessly thrown match or cigarette, or if they see smoke in the woods, they should notify a park employe or telephone headquarters at Bear Mountain, so that men and apparatus can be hurried to extinguish the fire. The same is true in any of the woodland preserves in the New Jersey highlands or in the Westchester and Long Island parks; and, later on, as the season advances, further north, in the Catskill and Adirondack state forest preserves.

Very little of the deciduous woodlands in the area within a hundred miles of New York city has escaped brush or woods fires at one time or another during the past twenty-five years, since the increasing outdoor movement began, as one can see by the charred butts of trees that survived, though crippled and weakened to an extent that kept them from healthy maturity. The mistaken idea that grass or pasture land is improved by burning it over every spring, is responsible not only for sterilizing the land by burning up the products of slow, natural decay which would fertilize the soil, but for fires that may spread to adjoining woodlands. All who go into the country at this season should beware of fires, for they may escape and damage the trees and flowers and birds and other life beyond the possibility of years to restore, and if repeated may exterminate beyond recall, in the nearby regions where it is easiest for us to reach and enjoy them, the more sensitive and delicate forms of creation that give us the highest enjoyment in the outdoors.

He Coughed For Two Years

Swore Off

After coughing for two years almost continuously and losing much sleep, a man of considerable means got thin and tired and worn out, made his will and was ready to quit the big game of life.

A friend spoke to him about Bronchuline Emulsion—a REAL medicine—and now life to him is very sweet indeed.

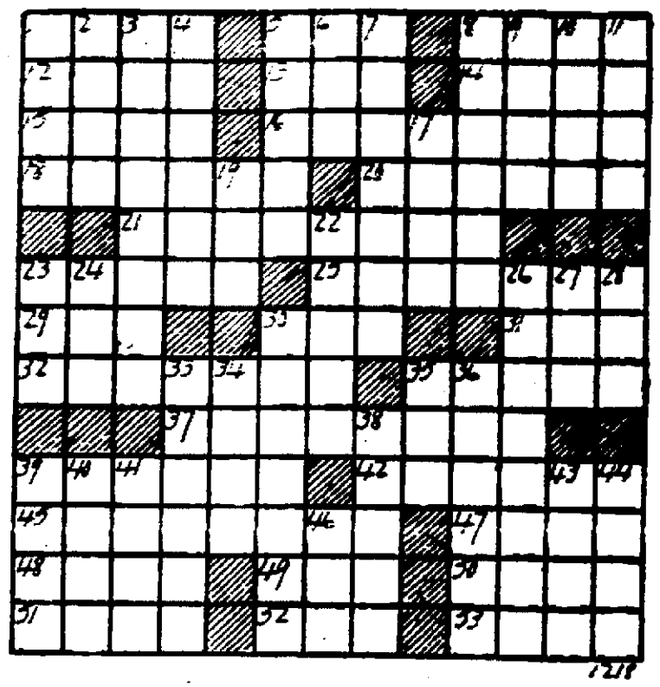

Tough old coughs—persistent coughs—coughs that hang on and rob people of their sleep—coughs that die hard and wear you down—those are the kind of coughs that Bronchuline likes to tackle.

Many times such coughs linger after the grippe or a heavy cold, and if you have one or know of anyone who has one that won't yield, keep Bronchuline Emulsion in mind.

It isn't just a cheap sweet cough syrup—it's the best cough remedy—and the best is never cheap. McBride's Drug Stores sell lots of it so do up to date dealers everywhere. A couple of doses is enough to stop an ordinary cough.

Diet to Avoid Rheumatism

Washington, March 15 (AP).—Rheumatism, ancient enemy of man's health and comfort, plays no favorites.

It attacks the joints and muscles of the old and young, the bed carrier and the banker, the college president and the tight rope walker.

But despite general knowledge of the disease, there exists a great deal of misinformation about it and much still remains to be learned by the medical profession regarding its causes and treatment.

To the average man, rheumatism means an aching or stiffness of the joints or muscles. While there is little doubt that rheumatic fever is an acute, infectious disease caused by a germ or germs, scientific knowledge of these germs is incomplete.

In recent years medical science has gathered considerable evidence that the accumulation of pus from diseased teeth and tonsils, constantly adding to the blood small quantities of poison, produces symptoms generally designated as rheumatism. With the location and removal of the foul infection, the so-called rheumatism often disappears with startling rapidity.

When a physician has discovered the existence of a focal infection, the spot of infection should be removed unless by its extraction considerable risk of life is incurred. The removal of a pus pocket frequently relieves the distressing symptoms in a rheumatic joint. Conservative physicians and dentists, however, do not advise the extraction of teeth which show only a slight infection upon x-ray examination, provided the teeth are otherwise sound.

Rheumatism often follows a cold, tonsilitis or some other acute respiratory condition. Prolonged exposure to wet or cold weather may be a contributing factor. As a preventive measure, a well balanced diet is most important. People should guard particularly against overeating or eating too much of one kind of food. Milk is always an acceptable article of diet in cases of rheumatism. Lemonade and mineral waters may be used freely. Persons suffering with rheumatism should have a careful physical examination to determine, if possible, the cause.

There are authorities who maintain that heart involvement is as much a part of rheumatism as a swollen joint, so a person cannot afford to take chances with the disease.

FIFTH OF COLLEGIATES IN LAND GRANT SCHOOLS.

Washington, March 15 (AP).—Approximately one-fifth of the resident college students in the country are attending land grant colleges, figures collected by the Bureau of Education show.

The 52 land grant colleges reported a total of 142,779 resident students in 1926, of which 97,881 were undergraduate men students.

Before the war engineering and agriculture were chosen by a large majority of the men. Present enrollments, however, show only 43 per cent in those branches.

Since agricultural economic conditions at the time of college entrance are often a determining factor, the report says, it is expected in the future that enrollments, which were affected by the war and the depression in 1921, will again be stabilized and fewer students will be lost to agriculture.

Food Specialist To Demonstrate

Miss Lucile Brewer, Specialist from Cornell, Comes to Kingston—Recently Studied in Paris.

The Ulster County Home Bureau is again fortunate in securing Miss Lucile Brewer, specialist in food preparation, from the State College of Home Economics, at Ithaca, who will give her famous Easter demonstration next Tuesday afternoon in Kingston. She can demonstrate to as many women as can be crowded into the Church Hall of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, and it is expected that the hall will be packed to capacity, as this is to be a county wide meeting.

Miss Brewer has recently spent some time in Paris studying the fine art of French cookery, and she will bring to Ulster county new ideas which she is now incorporating into what was already a masterpiece—her Easter demonstration. The women of the Home Bureau who have had before the privilege of seeing Miss Brewer's work cordially extend to all women of the county an urgent invitation to see this demonstration. They hope that no homemaker whether in city or country, will fail to take advantage of this unusual opportunity to observe an expert who can turn out dishes fit for a king.

Blacksmith of Gretna Green Pronounced Myth

Gretna Green's marrying blacksmith is the newest sacrifice to historical research. Before the Institute of France the report was recently made, after considerable delving into original sources, that this romantic detail in English written history, still appearing in reference books, was purely mythical.

Gretna Green, between 1754 and 1856, after England abolished clandestine marriage, was a place where runaway couples could be legally wedded. Living just north of the border in Scotland, it enabled elopers to take their vows before any resident of the village—tollkeeper, ferryman, soldier or smuggler. But there was no blacksmith.

Checking up the French savant, the Manchester Guardian learns that his discovery is true. Correspondents obtained from the oldest inhabitants of Gretna Green the origin of the empty legend: An artist when commissioned to paint a sign for the tollhouse inn put a blacksmith in the wedding picture for the sake of symbolism, hoping to emphasize the durability of the link that was being forged. His symbolism passed into tradition and so into history.

Doubt is expressed, however, whether fact can efface the artist's concept. The anvil altar, the leathern surplice, the mighty grip that clasped the hands of bride and bridegroom—a super power making a timeless gesture—had elements of sentiment that people prefer to retain.—New York Times.

Where Red Indians Got Wood for Bows

Medicine Bow, Wyo., and the Medicine Bow National forest derive their names from the fact that in early years the Indians came there from the surrounding territory to make their bows from the mountain mahogany which grows in abundance in that vicinity. Here, too, the Indians found pine trees of a certain species which grew in thick stands, straight, tall and trim. When overcrowded the trees were small, and the Indians found them desirable for the poles of their tepees. From this the tree gained the name of lodgepole pine.

Now the lodgepole pine is used primarily for railroad ties in the western states. In the Medicine Bow National forest it is cut under government regulation, floated down stream to the nearest railroad town and shipped to Laramie for preservative treatment. Government supervision insures the perpetuation of the supply.

Noncommital

"Study, without observation and application, are of very little use," declared Prof. Jules Maynard. "Indeed, that is why so many business men are inclined to select employees who have had what they term 'practical experience.'"

"Too many of our college boys are like the freshman who was on his way home after seeing one of the new shows, when he was accosted by an upper classman.

"'How was the show?' the upper classman wanted to know.

"The frosh looked blank for a moment, and then, with no little indecision in his voice, replied:

"'I don't know. I haven't heard anyone say.'"—Los Angeles Times.

Took Name From State

While tabasco peppers, so called because they were grown in the state of Tabasco, Mexico, were long an established product in trade and regularly exported from Mexico in the early part of the Nineteenth century, no one conceived the idea of trying to grow this plant in the United States until 1850. It was then that Col. Maunsell White obtained a few seeds from a Mexican who lived in Tabasco, and planted them on his plantation in Louisiana. With proper care and cultivation, these peppers grew profusely and before long became of a better quality than those produced in Mexico. Because of the origin of the seeds, White named the product tabasco, the name by which it is known today.

Eight Teams in High School Meet

Troy, N. Y., March 15 (AP).—Eight high school basketball teams will compete in the seventh annual state public high school basketball tournament, to be held in the armory here, March 22, 23 and 24. The tournament will be held under the auspices of the New York State Public High School Athletic Association.

The state is divided into eight sections for basketball activities in the high schools, and one team will be entered from each section. The competing team will be determined by sectional tournaments, most of which will be played early next week. Section 1 includes Long Island; Section 2, the lower Hudson valley; Section 3, those schools which form the northeastern New York Inter-Scholastic League; section 4, south central New York, including the high schools of Elmira, Cortland, Ithaca, Binghamton, Oneonta and Delaware county; section 5, central New York, including the territory around Utica and Syracuse; section 6, west central New York, the territory around Rochester; section 7, western New York, around Buffalo; and section 8, northern New York, centering around Saranac Lake and Malone.

There will be four games on the opening night of the tournament, in which all teams will compete. Opponents will be selected by lot, drawn at a sportsmanship dinner at noon on March 22, to be given by the Kiwanis Club of Troy in the Hendrick Hudson Hotel. Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, chief of the Physical Education Bureau of the New York State Department of Education, and president of the association, will preside at the dinner.

Winners of the elimination games will play in the semi-final on Friday night, while the finals will be played off on the closing night. Two trophies will be awarded, one to the winning team, and another to the runners-up.

The trophy now is held by the Yonkers High School, a newcomer last year in the state tournament, which won from Elmira in a hotly-contested battle, by a score of 35 to 34. The finish of the game was one of the outstanding moments of the 1927 tournaments. With only a minute to go, and Yonkers leading 35 to 29, Elmira's right forward made two field goals in rapid succession, cutting the lead to two points. Just as time was called, Elmira's center caged the ball on a free throw, leaving Yonkers the winner, by only one point.

Four referees who have handled the whistle in previous state tournaments have been selected for this year's meet. They are Don Risley of Utica, Ed Kearney of Syracuse, Emmett Dowling of Endicott and Art Powell of Buffalo.

Members of the competing teams will be entertained by Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, sleeping in the R. P. I. gymnasium and eating in the school dining hall.

The committee in charge of the tournament is composed of Floyd B. Watson, principal of South Side High School, Rockville Center; H. V. Loomis, Ossining High School; Edwin B. Robbins, principal of Glens Falls High; Frank R. Wassung, superintendent of Norwich schools; J. Guy Prindle, principal of Ilion High; Elmer K. Smith, assistant director of physical education in Rochester; Carl H. Burkhardt, supervisor of physical education in Buffalo; and Hugh C. Williams, principal of Canton High.

HOREMANS BEAT SCHAEFER IN BILLIARD TOURNEY

San Francisco, Mar. 15 (AP).—Edouard Horemans, Belgian billiard champion, took the world 18.2 championship from Jake Schaefer here last night by a count of 1,500 to 1,190.

The match ended in the 54th inning, when the Belgian "miracle man" clicked off 31 points after taking the balls on a setup. The last two blocks yesterday afternoon and last night were in marked contrast to the opening sessions, when Schaefer secured a slight lead. After running off 248, 194 and 154, Horemans made 117 in the 53rd inning to virtually decide the match.

Schaefer, despite his delicate stroking, could not get the feel of the table in the last two blocks.

"I could not shoot them in a basket," Schaefer remarked as the new champion made the final billiard.

MOST U. S. OLYMPIC WINNERS COLLEGE MEN.

New York, March 15 (AP).—The steadily increasing part played by college-trained athletes in American Olympic victories is shown graphically in figures compiled by the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America.

In 1908, they shew, 56 per cent of the points scored by America were won by college men; in 1912, 63 per cent; in 1920, 70 per cent; and in 1924, 86 per cent.

True to form, college stars make up a large part of the army of athletes now training for the trials for this year's team.

With the exception of Orizaba, Popocatepetl, Sahama, Istaccihuatl, Soconusco, Pomarape and Tenerife, practically all the commonly known volcanoes have been active within 100 years. There are at least 66 of sufficient size and activity to be listed.

Catholic Fives In Tournament

Chicago, March 15 (AP).—Basketball supremacy of the nation's Catholic high schools will be decided here March 21-25 at Loyola University. Champions of 12 states will vie with leading fives from at least 24 other states for the national title.

New state tournaments have been organized in Colorado, Indiana and Wisconsin, bringing the number of tournaments affiliated with the national organization to 12. Last year, 32 championship teams from 26 states took part in the classic. De La Salle of Joliet, Ill., emerged winner after a week of competition. The same school will defend its title this year, but minus the team that had an impressive pre-tourney record last year.

The Catholic tournament had its beginning in 1924, when it was virtually necessary to lasso teams in order to bring them into the meet. Tickets were given away in conjunction with student games. Last year more than 40,000 persons witnessed the games and this year the finals will be held in the Coliseum, which has a seating capacity of 11,000.

Cardinal Mundelein will present his trophy to the winning combination. The Mayor William Hale Thompson trophy also goes to the victorious team. Other awards are offered to the teams finishing two, three and four; to the team displaying the best sportsmanship and to the ranking player.

A team of full-blooded Sioux Indians from St. Francis, S. D., will add color to the tournament. The five was entered last year but was forced to withdraw when an epidemic of smallpox broke out in the reservation. The Indians were eliminated two years ago by the eventual champions. This year, they have lost only one game in 12 starts.

COACH NEVER A WRESTLER BUT INSTRUCTS CHAMPS.

Stillwater, Okla., March 15 (AP).—Ed C. Gallagher never was a wrestler himself but he has coached his Oklahoma A. & M. College grapplers to their fourth straight Missouri Valley championship and has developed some likely candidates for the Olympics.

One of the best is Captain George Rule, National A. A. U. and Valley Conference champion at 175 pounds. The Aggies already hold the National A. A. U. team title.

The next objective for Gallagher's athletes is the Olympic sectional tryouts here April 5, 6 and 7, while in July the team defends its team title and Rule and two team mates their individual crowns at the National A. A. U. championships at Grand Rapids, Mich. That meet also will be the final Olympic tryout and winning there undoubtedly will mean the right to go to Amsterdam.

No Uniformed Caddies.

St. Andrews, Scotland, March 15 (AP).—Scottish golfers haven't taken kindly to reports from England that caddies on some of the southern courses are to be put into elaborate uniforms. Scots who have played over the same links for half a century and have come to rely on their equally old-fashioned caddies say they fail to relish the idea of having the club-bearer uniformed to such a point that he will be less communicative than an English butler.

Boxing Tickets Now on Sale

Tickets for the armory scraps to be staged here on Friday night, March 23, are now on sale. Fans may get admission pasteboards for the battles, forecast to be the outstanding in quality presented here this season, at Murphy's news store on the Strand; the armory and Lotta's barber shop, 19 Railroad avenue.

The fans are not the only anxious persons to have March 23 roll around for Kid Rash is waiting for a crack at "Red" Edgerton. Rash will attempt to give the redhead the same sort of trimming he received at the hands of Charley Von Reeden, who substituted for Edgerton on the last card. The latter fighter, who was ill and could not appear here, has recovered and will be in prime shape for the battle with Rash. The fans did considerable booing when Edgerton did not show up for the last tilt as they had a "hunch" he ran out of the scrap with Rash. According to friends of the latter he too believes "Red" is timid of meeting him. Edgerton has stepped with better men than Rash, it is contended, and according to the feeling of both scrappers a real lively setto should result.

Four other bouts have been arranged as follows: Charley Van Reedon vs. Al De Silva, six rounds; Frankie Konchina vs. Oscar Pultz, six rounds; Joe Myers, local, vs. Tommy Gans, six rounds, and Dewey Van Buren, local, vs. Phil Moser, four rounds. Frenchy Dewig of Kingston is expected to be matched with a formidable opponent for Friday, March 23.

Hoyt Problem Up In The Air.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 15 (AP).—Difficulties between Waite Hoyt and the Yankees' management over an increase for the pitching star eclipsed other matters at the New York training camp today. Reports prevailed that Colonel Jacob Ruppert had virtually conceded to Hoyt's demand for a two year contract, but was not in accord with the $20,000 annual wage sought by the hurler who won 22 games for the world champions last year.

Filipinos in Olympics.

Amsterdam, Holland, March 15 (AP).—The Philippine Islands probably will participate in the Olympic track and field events, the Netherlands Olympic Committee has announced.

The Port Ewen team defeated the Comforter five 34-14 and in the last game of the evening, the Presbyterians downed the Trinity quintet 24-15.

McLarnin Can Take It.

Athletics Are Ready to Start

Cobb and Speaker Ask No Quarter From the Youngsters—Manager Mack Has Decided on Personnel in Every Branch but Pitching.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 15 (AP).—So far as Manager Connie Mack and his Philadelphia Athletics are concerned, the American League may open its season now. The Wahoo Elephants are ready. The tall tactician has decided on the personnel of his club in every branch but pitching, and has until June to reach a final decision on the hurling corps.

The outfield packs a punch, with Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Al Simmons as regulars and Bing Miller and Walter French in reserve. All five hit over .300 last season. Simmons led with .392, Cobb was satisfied with .357, Speaker clicked for .327 while Miller, wearing a St. Louis uniform, registered .325, and French finished at .304.

Cobb and Speaker, the 40-year-old veterans, are asking no quarter from the youngsters as the season stretches ahead. Cobb did his early conditioning with the Giants while Speaker put on a Philadelphia uniform for the first time with his new team-mates and was soon gathering in the fly balls, long and short, with effortless ease.

Joe Hauser, with his trick knee as good as ever, started playing first base without a limp. He took his old place back without opposition.

Max Bishop was assigned to second, Joe Boley retained shortstop and the hard hitting Sammy Hale again took over third. Captain Eddie Collins, who can play in a pinch; the versatile Jimmy Dykes and Joe Hassler, a Fort Smith, Ark., product of impressive physique, will make up the infield reserves. Hassler shows signs of being a great major league shortstop. Dykes can play any one of the four infield positions and Eddie Collins can pinch hit and play second.

There was no catching problem to vex Manager Mack, his 1927 receiving staff, Gordon Cochrane, Ralph Perkins and Jimmy Fox, returning intact.

Selection of ten pitchers to go along through the season presents the only doubt and this is causing little wear and tear on the veteran manager's baseball gray matter. Lefty Grove, the equally left-handed Rube Walbert and Ossie Orwell, who plays the outfield or first base and hits as well as pitches, will be the three southpaws making the grade. Five righthanders who seem to have the inside track are Howard Ehmke, the veteran Jack Quinn, Ed Rommell, Jing Johnson, who came back last year, and the much-traveled Joe Bush.

Bill Shores, with Waco last year, has shown enough to warrant additional inspection and he will be one of the athletes in Athletic uniform at the start of the season. John Lyons, Ike Powers, Claude Jannard and several other pitchers who would like to play with the Athletics must fight it out for assignments, which will be reduced to a minimum by the time the season gets under way.

When MacFarlane Beat Evans

IT WAS back in 1914, and Chick Evans, after a pleasant and evidently beneficial visit in Atlanta, where he played a lot of golf in preparation for the British Amateur championship—taking advantage of the early Dixie spring—was overseas in the great amateur classic, played that year at the Royal St. George's club, Sandwich. Chick was then twenty-four years old, I believe, and he was going great guns, says a writer in the Detroit News. Indeed, he was the leading favorite to win, as the competition got under way and he began to smack his opponents off steadily in the 18-hole matches which our British cousins insist are long enough for championship play—until they get to the final match.

Chick Evans.

And then came along a little, wiry, ruddy Scot with a strong burr in his speech and a very decent game, though nothing, the wise ones fancied, to interrupt the course of Chick's triumphal progress.

Well, well—when I was in Britain in 1926, with the American Walker cup team, the first place the boys went to practice, the morning after reaching London, was Walton Heath, the great, bleak course where James Braid holds forth.

Several British sport writers where at Walton Heath, and on being introduced to one of them, something caught in a remote convolution of memory, and when he had joined another group I asked Fred Pignon if it were possible that he—the wiry little Scot I had just met—could be . . . ?

"Precisely," said Fred. "But he's sensitive about it. Says he doesn't care for being famous as the man who beat Evans. That's MacFarlane. Now, a number of persons have defeated Chick, hither and yon about the world. But until last summer at Minikahda I do not recall that anyone ever went quite so fast against him in the opening burst of nine holes. And even the astonishing rush of Bobby Jones, going out in 31 in that first round at Minikahda, cannot be regarded as quite so calamitous as the punishment administered at Sandwich, so many years ago, by this quiet little Scot. The British match was at 18 holes.

Chick Evans, playing superb golf, traveled the first nine holes exactly in par—and he was 5 down! McFarlane, with a bad 6 on a par 4 hole, was out in 31 strokes.

Years after, I asked Chick what he thought about, as he stood on the tenth tee. Chick grinned reminiscently.

"I looked out over the blue Atlantic," he said, "and I thought about home, sweet home!"

Last year I asked Charley MacFarlane what he thought about, at the same juncture.

Charley became ruddier than ever. "Ah, well," he parried, "it just happened to be my lucky day."

Scintillating Remarks by Noisy Detroit Fans

In relating the baseball expressions for which Hughie Jennings was famous, one has been generally overlooked, and that was:

"Touch all the bases."

At times he emphasized it:

"Remember now: Touch all the bases."

It was always shouted across the playing field when a Detroit batsman came to the plate in a pinch.

If the batter happened to strike out, or fly out, or ground out, the crowd, if Detroit happened to be playing on a foreign field, had its revenge. The crowd, in chorus, would yell to Jennings:

"See him touch all the bases, Hughie?"

Or, quite often:

"Hey, Hughie, that bum can't even touch first."

And similar scintillating remarks.

But Jennings generally had his innings before the game was over. Sooner or later Bossman, Cobb or Crawford, would "get hold o' one" and touch several bases while Jennings shrieked and danced in glee, fully revenged.

Big Train Beats Sport Boys at Their Own Game

In leaving the ranks of active baseball players, as in leading them, Walter Johnson thought first of the boys.

Reporters and friends were eagerly awaiting his decision whether to sign the contract with the Newark Bears of the International league. All day his telephone was ringing or "busy." All day he replied that he probably would have "something to say in a few days."

But that night he was making a little talk over the radio to boys. When he felt their presence on the invisible side of the microphone he told them all about it. Not many of them realized they were getting a choice news "beat."

Not until the radio station had closed off were the reporters and friends able to get the "Big Train" to own up that he had signed to manage the Bears.

Many Homeless In Dam Disaster

Los Angeles, March 15 (AP).—Estimates of the number of homeless persons in the area of the St. Francis dam disaster today were as varied as the ever changing figures on the death toll, the highest guesses being "more than 1,000".

Chaotic conditions resulting from the devastating sweep of the floods made it almost impossible to get a definite line on the number of homeless. Most persons affected by the disaster kept up a hunt for missing friends or relatives and did not keep in one place long enough to give information of their furniture or homes.

Hundreds of houses were destroyed. Many buildings were moved but not demolished. At Piru, Santa Paula, Fillmore and other little towns in the Santa Clara river valley, there were many structures that had been moved for a considerable distance. Others needed but a touch of the carpenter's hammer here and there.

MARCH MEETING OF P.-T. A. SCHOOL NO. 6

The March meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of School No 6 was held on Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance.

Mrs. Russell, chairman of the Federated Council of the Parent-Teacher Association, gave a very interesting as well as inspiring talk in which she explained the purpose of the association and the necessity of sending a delegate to the State Convention next fall.

The association decided to send a delegate to the convention at Newburgh, on April 17. It was also voted to hold a food sale at the school on Friday afternoon, March 23.

Principal Miner had charge of the program and demonstrated the new set of stereographs that had been purchased by the school for use in the class rooms. He stated that the teacher and pupils of each room had promised to raise a certain amount of money by June 1st to help pay for the set. Mrs. Thomas Hayes very kindly offered to raise $50 to aid in this enterprise.

Following the stereographs Mr. Miner showed the parents a few stereopticon slides pertaining to the same topics.

Attendance banners were awarded to Rooms 5, 6 and 10.

Crop Rotation Aids Beekeeper

Sweet Clover Termed One of Best and Most Reliable Plants for Honey.

Crop rotation and soil improvement programs, while not primarily intended to benefit the beekeeper, have nevertheless been very greatly to his advantage in Ohio, Virgil N. Argo, specialist in apiculture for Ohio State university, points out. One result of the progressive farming methods has been a very great increase in the Ohio acreage of sweet clover, which Argo characterizes as "one of the best and most reliable of all honey plants." The acreage of sweet clover in Ohio has increased in the last decade from about 100,000 acres to between 300,000 and 350,000 acres.

Honey-Producing Areas.

"Originally," Argo says, "there were two natural honey-producing areas in the state. Almost all the western half, covered with a glacial soil derived from limestone, supported the growth of clovers, and there were crops of alsike and white clover honey each year. In the northeastern corner of the state was the buckwheat section.

"Improved methods of agriculture have enlarged these nectar sources. In western Ohio there has been a remarkable increase in the use of sweet clover. It gives a honey of exceptionally fine flavor and appearance and yields nectar every year. In northeastern Ohio there has been an increase in the use of lime as a soil treatment, with more and more land planted to alsike and white clover. Even the buckwheat area of the state now produces heavy crops of clover honey when weather conditions are favorable.

Taste of Clover Honey.

"Sweet clover honey has a distinctive spicy taste not found in white clover and alsike honeys. Buckwheat honey, the darkest on the market in this country, has a very strong flavor and is preferred by some persons, but there is not such a market demand for it as for the clover honeys."

New Type Feed Grinders Becoming Very Popular

The last ten years has seen a very significant change in the design and construction of small feed grinders. In years gone by practically the only type which was available to the farmer was the burr type, which worked very satisfactorily and of which thousands were sold and put into successful use.

The new type, however, that is coming into use seems to be very popular. It is known as the hammer mill and differs from the burr mill in having swinging hammers which strike the material to be ground and crush it much as a baseball bat would crush an apple if it were swung at it. These hammers are mounted on a rotating cylinder and are rather numerous, so that not very much of the material gets away. The hammers are made of manganese steel, a very hard substance, strongly resistant to wear.

The degree of fineness to which material is ground is regulated by screens at the bottom through which the material can pass. So long as it is not fine enough to pass through the screens, it will be subjected to the action of the hammers until finally it is reduced to required fineness.

Easy to Capture Rats While They Are Young

Rats, like the poor, we have always with us, but it is at this season that they are generally thickest, owing to the 100 per cent results of their breeding. Fortunately, however, the adolescents among them very nearly always be caught if only a regular campaign is undertaken against them. This is a good method:

Cut some corks up into pieces the size of small peas and fry the fragments well in bacon fat or lard. Dish out the result into a tin plate and leave this near the creatures' haunts (though don't let your household pets or chickens get at the stuff). The younger rats will eat greedily thereof and perish in consequence.

Hints for the Farm

Gullies in an eroded field are the ear-marks of shiftless farming.

* * *

Cod liver oil fed to hens that are housed closely during winter helps keep up egg production.

* * *

Fifty cents' worth of acid phosphate added to a ton of manure makes it worth two tons of manure.

* * *

The successful farmer of today is the farmer who uses power successfully. One-mule farming is too inefficient to pay.

* * *

Best results are obtained when lime for alfalfa is applied before the seed is sowed if the soil is sour, for lime acts slowly.

* * *

Sweet clover may be seeded during the winter months when the soil is honeycombed from freezing and thawing. Under most conditions, it is best to seed the crop in the spring either alone or with oats as a nurse crop. When the crop is seeded during the winter, nonscarified seed should be used. For spring seeding, the scarified seed is preferable.

Safety Cars of New York Central

The Safety Cars of the New York Central Lines will be in this city March 21, 22 and 23, for the purpose of creating further interest in safety on the part of the railway employes and the public.

These cars have only recently been constructed and are up to date in every particular. One car contains a representative display of exhibits, with photographs depicting the safe and unsafe method of doing the work; models of the latest improved type of machinery; and also the latest type of alternating flash light signals, which have been adopted by the American Railway Association as standard for highway crossing protection.

The other car is in fact a motion picture theatre on wheels. It is arranged to comfortably seat eighty people at one time, where motion pictures are displayed as a further educational means of preventing accidents.

The New York Central Lines have produced two pictures, known as "Safety Pays" and "Gambling With Death" from scenarios written by Charles E. Hill, General Safety Agent. "Safety Pays" depicts the hazards and the safe methods of railroad operation. It is interwoven in story form and holds the attention of the employes throughout. "Gambling With Death" portrays the railroad highway crossing problem, containing many scenes of actual occurences resulting from carelessness. This is likewise in story form and is not only very thrilling but carries its message and does not fail to forcibly point out the necessity of care in approaching and passing over crossings at grade. It is the only picture of its kind that has ever been produced. Both of these pictures have been endorsed by national and state organizations and are now extensively used throughout the country.

When organized safety first began functioning upon the American railways fifteen years ago, the physical aspect entered into the problem to a great extent, but following the installation of improved machinery and good housekeeping, more than ninty per cent, of the accidents that occur today are due to unsafe practices or improper methods of doing the work. Therefore, the real remedy at this time is a constructive campaign of education. This same remedy likewise applies in the efforts the railroads and the public are making jointly to curtail accidents at highway crossings and elsewhere wherein the railroads and the public are mutually concerned. The railroads through educationary methods during the past fifteen years have reduced employe and passenger fatalities nearly sixty per cent, whereas crossing and other public accidents have materially increased. Through a greater spirit of cooperation, there is no reason why a similar achievement cannot be brought about in reducing accidents wherein the public is involved.

The public is also cordially invited to inspect these cars, witness the motion pictures, and see what the New York Central Lines are endeavoring to do to curtail accidents of all kinds.

STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do their work. Dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the resultant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 10c, 25c, 60c. All Druggists.

Tamed Ocean-Going Monster Transports Trains in Baltic

Upper left is the new S. S. Schwerin, German railroad ferry boat, and at the right is close-up of her monster jaws which allow the trains to board her. Lower left shows the inside of the monster ferry which makes through traffic from Berlin to Copenhagen possible.
(International Illustrated News)

By WILSON WALTERS
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

HERE is the modern sea monster. Like the voracious terrors of old, this one has a most gigantic maw and swallows its prey whole.

However, our modern creation is a fact and fills an urgent need instead of being a horror to all good sailors.

This latest invention of German engineers is a huge railroad ferry.

The effect is very weird and unusual in the extreme. When trains are put aboard the S. S. "Schwerin" an immense mouth on her bow opens like a great fish.

After twenty passenger cars and forty freight cars are inside, the mouth closes and they are safe from sliding off into the Baltic Sea. Anyhow they are inside and stay there no matter what happens.

The "Schwerin" will provide the last link in the connection by rail between Berlin and Copenhagen via Warnemuende. Even though it looks like a fairy tale dragon, you probably have heard of less practical things.

WHY

Great Personages Fear to Face "Mike"

Celebrities may be very "ritzy" in public, but they soon take off their high hats when they have to speak before the microphone, says Quin Ryan, radio announcer at the Chicago station, WGN. "There are three spots in this universe where all men are equal," Ryan maintains. "—on the roller coaster, in the dentist's chair, and in the radio studio. All my young life," he says, "I have been ritzed by celebrities, ritzed by experts. But now the worm has turned. The worm has turned radio announcer, and when I get them in the radio studio I have them scared to death. Every famous personage quakes a bit before the microphone.

"When I was a newspaper reporter, interviewing persons of note," the writer explains, "I was always colliding with a lifted eyebrow. But for the past few years, as a part of my radio job, it has been one of my chores to meet, interview, and introduce the famous of the land. And the conclusion I have drawn from these intimate contacts is that celebrities are not so bad as they are celebrated, and that the great are gracious and amiable. People I've read about, people I've put on pedestals—all come into the studio one by one, confessing their trepidation before the broadcasting ordeal, and proving themselves as 'folksy' as an Edgar Guest poem."—Liberty Magazine.

Why Precious Metals Are Hoarded in India

The Hindu family ordinarily holds all real property and household goods in common. The individual wishing to save for his own use can segregate his savings only in the form of gold and silver. Millions of the native population, too, have no access to the banks. In time of stress they must draw on accumulated reserves or resort to the money lender—at 75 per cent interest.

"Consequently," a traveler writes, "there is a strong tendency in times of prosperity to purchase small quantities of silver and gold in the form of coins, bullion, or ornaments as a reserve against want.

"Millions of people, particularly in south India and east India, never have a sufficient margin to do even this, as they have no savings whatever; this is evidenced by the necessity for famine relief measures in many sections as soon as there is a crop failure."—New York Times.

Why Cab Drivers Are Jehus

Because Jehu, the son of Jehoshaphat, the son of Nimshi, who was divinely and miraculously chosen to be king of Israel, was identified by the watchman on the tower of Jezreel through his furious driving in a chariot, cab drivers are generally know as "Jehus." "The driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi, for he driveth furiously." "Jehus," therefore, are those who drive furiously. The application of the term to a taxi driver, therefore, is not without reason. But the original Jehu never had an accident and reigned safely over Israel in spite of the commission of an appalling number of murders and massacres.

Why the Term "Loafer"

Why say "loafer" of a shiftless man? Here's the story from which this custom is said to have sprung: A shiftless young man fell in love with the daughter of an old Dutchman in New York. The father disapproved of the youth. When he saw the lazy fellow coming he was wont to remark to his daughter: "Here comes that 'lofer' (lover) of yours, the idle good-for-nothing." The word "lofer," finally spelled with a "a," came to be applied to any shiftless person.—Grit.

Why the Name "Solons"

The name Solon was borne by an Athenian, who was noted for his learning and wisdom in counsel. He was also known as the law giver of Athens and to him was intrusted the task of revising the Athenian constitution. This accounts for the name being applied to the members of the United States congress.

Why They Are "Weeds"

Widows' "weeds" are derived from a Saxon word, "waede"—a woven garment. Later the term was confined to the distinctive dress of a widow, and then narrowed to the long crepe streamers from the bonnet.

How Greenland Got Name

Greenland was named by the old Scandinavian navigator Eric the Red. He gave the place an attractive name because he wanted to induce colonists from Norway to settle in the new country.

How Borax Is Formed

Borax is an inorganic salt and is native where found. It is a crystalline compound and the borax of commerce is secured by refining the crude borax.

Why "Cool as Cucumber"

The cucumber usually has a temperature a degree lower than that of the surrounding atmosphere. Hence the expression, "Cool as a cucumber."

Why Death at High Altitude

Scientists say that life, even with the aid of oxygen, would be impossible above 49,000 feet because of the low atmospheric pressure.

Sources of Eloquence

True eloquence does not consist in speech; labor and learning may toil in vain; words and phrases may be marshaled in every way, but they cannot compass it. It must exist in the man, in the subject and in the occasion.—Daniel Webster.

MODENA.

Modena, March 15.—The railroad station at Modena was destroyed by fire early Monday morning and although New Paltz and Highland hose companies responded to the alarm, the building was too far gone for the apparatus used to be effective. A defective stove caused the ignition which was discovered by Thomas Dubois, who lives near the station. Harcourt's feed and cider mill was in danger but no damage was done there.

Lewis Hyatt has a new Chevrolet coupe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Denton were callers at Samsonville, N. Y. Sunday afternoon.

Dubois Grimm motored to Long Island Saturday and spent the latter part of the week there.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mathieson and son Robert of New Paltz, Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathieson of Brooklyn spent the early part of the week at Modena Inn.

John Wager and family are moving from George Carney's place to Robert Lefever's farm at Forest Glen, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ayres of Wallkill were visitors in this place last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Paltridge spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hallock Harris.

Tenants moved in the tenant house of Peter Smith, Monday.

The Washington Club of Highland High School entertained at Hasbrouck Memorial Hall Tuesday evening with vaudeville sketches, songs, etc. The entertainment was well presented and a nice sized crowd was in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harcourt, for many years residents of this place will take possession of their newly purchased home, between Ardonia and Clintondale, in the near future. This place was formerly owned by E. Simpson, who conducted a butcher shop at Clintondale.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Paltridge will move in the tenant house of Peter Smith, April 1st, which is now occupied by Alvin Coy and family.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Shultis and Anson Armstrong were Kingston visitors Tuesday.

"BIG TEAM" HITCHES NOW COMMON ON FARMS.

Washington, March 15 (AP).—Reports from farming communities, particularly in the great plains states, indicate to the department of agriculture that farmers are finding it expedient to work from eight to twelve horses in the so-called "big hitch."

Successful use of big-team hitches involves the arrangement of horses partly in tandem to avoid side draft and for simplicity in driving. They are especially adapted to plowing, disking, harrowing and harvesting and can be used in the corn belt and other regions having extensive fields, as well as in the northwest where the idea originated.

One man, it is declared, working the "big hitch," can do more in a single day than two or three men were doing before with smaller teams. South Dakota and Minnesota are taking a forward step in using these large power units in keeping down the cost of crop production.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 15 (AP).—Violent speculation for the advance was resumed in today's stock market, with General Motors again in the forefront of the advance. More than a score of specialties were marked up 5 to 8 points on a series of drives against the "short" interest in those issues. Rails assumed increasing prominence with six issues in new high ground for the year. Trading picked up on the rally, averaging more than 750,000 shares an hour in the first three hours.

General Motors, after absorbing a large amount of profit taking earlier in the week, suddenly rushed up 7 points to a new peak at 164, with buying influenced by reports of increasing sales. Radio held fairly steady around yesterday's final price of 150 during the early part of the session. American Linseed, the spectacular performer yesterday, opened 3 points lower at 104, rallied to 110¾ and then quieted down around 109.

United Drug was bid up 8 points, Houston Oil 7¼, General Railway Signal 7, du Pont, Wright Aeronautical, Savage Arms, Mullins Body and U. S. Industrial Alcohol 6½ each, and Midland Steel Products preferred, American Sugar, International Nickel, International Telephone, five points or more.

POULTRY

MAKE PROFIT IN RAISING TURKEYS

Most people consider that it is practically impossible to raise turkeys. However, the results of some breeders as well as those of the experiment stations show that it is not only possible to raise turkeys, but it is also possible to make a profit at the work.

When turkeys are being raised a producer has only one thing in mind, namely, keeping them alive and healthy so that they will grow into marketable poultry. With chickens there are two propositions to watch, eggs and market poultry.

Turkeys are subject to many of the ailments that bother chickens, but the chief trouble has been a disease known as blackhead. This disease affects turkeys of all ages, but is particularly disastrous when poults are just nicely feathered.

There has been a reason for these losses in many cases. Chickens are affected with blackhead, but it does not usually kill them. In many cases chickens have acted as carriers of the disease to the turkeys. In view of this many people have found it advantageous to raise the poults away from chickens and on fresh ground. This has encouraged the use of incubators and brooders for turkeys and, where properly managed, they have proved very satisfactory.

When young poults are reared with chickens they usually get worms. Worms seem to help the parasites that cause blackhead, as it makes an opening for the parasite to enter the system. People who raise their young turkeys on fresh ground, away from other poultry, are not apt to be troubled with blackhead. Turkeys will even stand confinement, if plenty of green stuff, good sanitation and adequate protection is provided. The Minnesota experiment station raised turkeys in confinement for the last three years. It is not necessary for the young poults to catch grasshoppers, as animal protein needed in their ration can be supplied with meat scraps.

First Feed of Poults of Much Importance

The first feed of the poults is very important. The second day they should be given a little clean drinking water and have access to some fine sand.

The third day they will show signs of hunger. Feed them about five times each day for several days. Hard-boiled eggs, clabber cheese, corn bread and pinhead oats are all good foods for the baby turk.

Give only what they will clean up quickly. Keep them hungry and looking for more. As they develop they may be given cracked wheat, corn meal and hulled oats. Good results will be obtained by keeping bran before them at all times. Sweet skim milk and buttermilk may be given in the early morning. Green feed and grit should be given, if it must be purchased from the poultry supply dealers.

When the hen is allowed to range, the turks will get plenty of exercise and pick up lots of bugs and worms as well as weed seed and green material. One must be careful to drive the mother in before a rainstorm and put her and her brood in a house that does not leak.

The hen should not be allowed to roost away from her coop a single night while poults are small. Rats and skunks may steal her young and a storm may come up during the night and destroy the young. Keep a watchful eye on the flock and success will be assured.

Late Molters

The most desirable of the late laying hens which molt as late as September 15 or later should be mated with the best males of the flock or preferably with males secured from a breeder of a good strain of production-bred stock. A small pen of 15 to 25 breeders will produce cockerels for the flock matings the following season and, furthermore, will help to lay the foundation for a flock of high producing birds.

Giving Eggs Air

Cooling the eggs gives them an airing and replaces the stale air in the egg chambers. It also slows down the hatch. The early hatches need no cooling except the amount received while they are turned. If the eggs are cooled too much twice a day it is evident that it will take some time to bring them back to 103 degrees. It often means that three or four hours out of each twenty-four the eggs will be developing at a temperature below 103 degrees.

Kill Weak Chicks

This advice given by the Ohio College of Agriculture seems a little bit cruel, but it is probably worth following: Do not under any circumstances help chicks out of the shell. Chicks which do not have enough vitality to get out of the shell, either because of a lack of vitality in the egg or because of faulty incubation, are not worth having. "Kill and burn all weak or crippled chicks as soon as the hatch is over. Weak chicks are always a menace to the flock."

Charge Cripple Killed Doctor

Scranton, Pa., March 15 (AP).—Joseph Kamenskey, Jr., 20, a crippled youth, was in the county jail today charged with the murder of Dr. Gerald A. Kelly. He is alleged to have shot Kelly to death because the physician had participated in an operation that resulted in the amputation of his right leg.

Dr. Kelly was slain in his office at Jessup, near here, yesterday. Kamenskey later was arrested in a Scranton motion picture theatre after he had attempted to shoot his captors.

Kamenskey was said to have confessed that he had held a grudge against Dr. Kelly since he advised the amputation of his leg three years ago after he had been injured in a coal mine. Three shots were fired into the doctor's body.

Kamenskey was said by the police to have held up a man in Scranton shortly before the shooting in order to obtain money to pay taxicab fare to Jessup. He sat in Dr. Kelly's office more than an hour before the physician arrived, and was asleep on the couch when the doctor entered.

Teachers' Night At Y. W. Supper

It was "Teachers' Night" at the Y. W. C. A. when the birthday of good St. Patrick, otherwise St. Patrick's Day in the Mornin' was celebrated before it happened at the business girls' club supper. Caps and napkins awearin' of the green in the form of shamrock and the harp that once thro' Tara's Halls, decorated the tables and the heads of the guests, and nearly every club member had a new girl with her for the supper. There were lots of jolly songs and then the blow fell. Of course, being "Teachers," they just naturally had to have folks doing something, and the first thing was to write a list of thirty-five assorted adjectives—and if The Freeman reporter didn't win that prize, there's something wrong—and the name of an important citizen. Having had this instantaneous preparatory course those present were asked to quickly fill in the blank spaces in a written story given them, according to the prize winning story Mayor Dempsey had asked the club president to give a report of the meeting. Talk about journalism, why that account of the meeting was a scream and would fill any professional reporter with the greenest jealousy, which is the only colored jealousy to be used for St. Patrick's day. That was not enough, yet for those insatiable teachers, and the victims were next called upon for the drawing of the map of Ireland. There was as much geographical talent as literary shown and Old Erin would never have known itself. The program closed with very clever shadow pictures including St. Patrick chasing the snakes; the kissing of the blarney stone and other pictures.

DAIRY FACTS

SUMMER PASTURE FOR DAIRY COWS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the hardest-working animals on the farm is the high-producing dairy cow. Proper feeding to supply her with the nutrients necessary for milk production is essential at all times. The fact that proper feeding is neglected in summer more often, perhaps, than at any other season, is due, no doubt, to the mistaken idea that pasture is an all-sufficient feed.

Some hints on the feeding of dairy cows in summer are presented by J. R. Dawson, dairy husbandman of the United States Department of Agriculture, in a six-page illustrated leaflet issued by the department. It is known as Leaflet No. 7-L, and copies can be obtained on application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A cow producing as much as 35 pounds of milk a day, Mr. Dawson says, cannot ordinarily eat and digest enough grass to furnish all the nutrients for her needs. A cow producing only 20 or 25 pounds per day will scarcely be able to get sufficient nutrient out of the good pasture grass which she can eat to keep up this amount of production. Yet thousands of farmers expect their dairy cows to produce more than this during the summer on poor pastures with no additional feed.

In addition to good pasture, cows producing more than 20 pounds of milk daily should be given one pound of grain to each four or six pounds of milk produced. The grain may be a mixture of the ordinary farm grains such as corn, oats, wheat bran, or barley, and should always be ground. For cows producing more than 35 pounds of milk daily a grain mixture should contain one high-protein concentrate, such as the oil meals; otherwise the ration will be too low in protein in comparison with the carbohydrates and fats.

When pastures are poor or dry, it is advisable to supplement them by other succulent feeds, such as summer silage or crops grown to be fed green. Plans should be made now for a supply of summer silage and green crops to suppliment pastures.

Superphosphate Adds to Great Value of Manure

Dairy farmers have much to gain by applying superphosphate (acid phosphate) to their land with manure, it is pointed out by a recent statement for the press issued by the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. The authorities give the following directions for using superphosphate in this way:

"Scatter it in the stalls and gutters at the rate of 1½ to 2 pounds daily for each cow. It is a good absorbent and is a sanitary material to use in the dairy barn. Farmers who do not wish to scatter it in the stalls and gutters may spread it over each load of manure at the rate of 50 to 75 pounds to a load. If manure is stored, scatter it over the stored manure every few days at the rate of 40 to 60 pounds for each ton of manure.

"Farmers who have tried this plan find it saves time and conserves the valuable parts of the manure."

Lice Seriously Retard Good Growth of Calves

Lice cause great annoyance to calves and may seriously retard growth if present in large numbers. They are difficult to control, but about the most satisfactory treatment is dipping or washing with a coal tar dip solution. This method cannot be used during cold weather, but should be used the first warm, still spring day. Soak the calves to the skin at every point with a 2 per cent solution of some good coal tar dip. In a week or ten days the treatment should be repeated to get the young lice which have hatched.

Dairy Hints

Starve the calves, and the cows will starve you.

• • •

In churning, the speed which gives the greatest concussion is most effective.

• • •

The proved sire seems to be the best solution of the dairy breeding problem.

• • •

Selling your neighbor unprofitable cows in unneighborly, but then there is the butcher as your means of escape.

• • •

The dairy barn should be arranged to admit plenty of fresh air and sunlight and provide for convenient and adequate storage of feed.

• • •

Cooling cream and milk immediately after separating takes out the animal heat and removes the smothered flavor so often objected to.

• • •

Proper housing of dairy cattle will lower the cost of production of dairy products and will make the labor connected with the handling of dairy animals less objectionable.

Fathers and Sons Enjoy Banquet

Scoutmaster Luedtke of Troop No. 10 Complimented for Work Among Scouts—The Rev. O. E. Brandorff Spoke of Youths' Safety.

The American Legion Boy Scout Troop, No. 10, and the boys' fathers enjoyed a father and son banquet in the Memorial Building, West O'Reilly street, Wednesday evening. The boys presented a play and engaged in various contests after listening to the speaker of the evening, the Rev. Oscar E. Brandorff, and several other men who gave interesting talks.

The boys assembled in the lower corridor with their fathers and from there they proceeded to the banquet hall. A very delightful dinner was served by the Legion Auxiliary. Following the banquet the boys and their fathers sang a number of songs, including "There's a Long, Long Trail", "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Sweet Adeline".

Then Edward Luedtke, scoutmaster of Troop 10, introduced S. Matthews, member of the scout committee. Mr. Matthews complimented Mr. Luedtke on the progress he had made with his scout troop. Mr. Rider, scoutmaster of Troop 11 of this city, was the second speaker of the evening. Mr. Rider brought forth the point in the scout oath "on my honor I will do my best". This is hard for any scout to live up to, Mr. Rider said, for it is not alone a boy's job, but a man's job, and if he does this he is accomplishing something.

The next speaker introduced by Mr. Luedtke was P. Jones, representative of the American Legion of the Ulster County Council. Mr. Jones also complimented Scoutmaster Luedtke on the progress his troop had made in spite of its being organized only six months. Then Conrad J. Heiselman, commander of Kingston Post of the American Legion, was called upon. Mr. Heiselman related to the boys the hardships boys had when he was a boy living in New York city. He told the boys that they live in one of the best managed and cleanest cities in the world and the point which he stressed was "grasp your opportunities".

The main speaker of the evening was the Rev. Oscar E. Brandorff, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer. The Rev. Mr. Brandorff put the question to the boys' fathers, "Is the Young Man of Today Safe?" He claimed that the fathers do not know their sons. The fathers do not know the son's inclinations and weak points because they fail to spend enough time with their sons. Pastor Brandorff said he is not opposed to motion pictures, but he is opposed to young boys being allowed to see "dime novels" dramatized. "Moving pictures should be a source of education", Pastor Brandorff continued, "but many film shows corrupt the mind and destroy the morals of the growing boys".

Following Pastor Brandorff's very instructive talk, the Boy Scouts gave a play, "The Busy Afternoon". In the play, the boys by their courtesy and honor converted a neighboring farmer, who was their enemy, to become one of their best friends.

Following this, Scoutmaster Luedtke had the boys give a knot tying exhibition, an exhibition of bandaging, signaling, life saving, different ways of carrying disabled people, fire building with flint and steel and by friction. Master Toffel, the bugler, blew the various calls and taps. Following this, the boys' fathers played a few games which ended a most pleasant evening.

NEW MOUNTAINS FOUND IN SIBERIA

Great Range 600 Miles Long Hitherto Unknown.

Washington.—A great mountain range, bigger than the Caucasians, has been discovered by Russian explorers in an almost unknown territory in Sibera, hitherto believed to be nothing more than a rolling plain, according to information just received here.

It lies in northeastern Yakutsk, a little known region containing unexplored areas larger than France.

The district was found to be mountainous and to be part of a great range that trends from the Arctic coast, east of Lena river, southward and eastward.

This range, with an estimated length of more than 600 miles and a greater width of nearly 200 miles, is perhaps the last great mountain range of the world that had remained undiscovered. It has been named in honor of M. Cherski, a Russian geologist who explored parts of Siberia.

Where it is cut through by Indigirka river the Cherski range comprises nine mountain chains, whose highest summits reach more than 10,000 feet. The party passed some of the gorges by rafting down the river but found others impassable and had to make long detours over the mountains.

Because of the unexpected roughness of the district the exploration consumed much more time than was anticipated and the party was overtaken by heavy snow before returning.

Story-Telling Champion of Lithuania 100 Years Old

Dzukija, Lithuania.—Wars and rumors of wars do not disturb the serenity of old Dede Pasakorius, famous story-teller of Lithuania. His home lies close to the Polish demarcation line, which is the apple of discord between the two nations.

The region is especially dear to patriotic Lithuanians, for all the beautiful age-old folk stories and songs, in which the Lithuanian language is rich, originated here.

Even this village, "Dzukija," has a poetic name. It means "Song-Land."

Pasakorius is known all over the country as the "story-telling uncle." He has an inexhaustible fund of them, and he tells them with a natural charm to delighted audiences. He is well over one hundred, but when one asks him how old he really is he says:

"Oh, boy! No man can tell. I'm so old, I've forgotten."

Paid Its Way

Rapid City, S. D.—George Fisher brought a tire for repair here after receiving a puncture in the Black hills. Repair men discovered a gold nugget, about one and a quarter inches in length, embedded in the tire. A local jeweler said the nugget was worth $1.85, or much more than the cost of repairing the puncture.

Greater Savings Shown in Report

State Financial Institutions Had Total Resources of $14,457,662,425—Remarkable Growth of Savings and Loan Associations.

Albany, N. Y., March 15 (AP).—Financial institutions under the supervision of the New York state banking department had total resources of $14,457,662,425 on January 1, 1928, part two of the department's annual report, filed with the Legislature today, disclosed. The sum represented an increase in total resources of $1,049,822,126 over the January 1, 1927, total.

Deposits for all banking institutions at the beginning of the present year totalled $10,743,338,000, of which $4,168,129,036 was in savings banks. The percentage of resources involved by the savings banks in real estate mortgages was 61.15 during the past year, the report noted.

The banking department, in the report, declared itself in favor of bills now before the Legislature designed to broaden the field of investments for savings banks.

Turning to the subject of savings and loan associations, the report continued:

"The remarkable growth of the savings and loan associations of the state during the past year should be a source of genuine satisfaction, for it is a recognized fact that these mutual corporations are of exceptional service in promoting thrift among the earners of the country. While primarily organized to further home owning and home building, the remunerative returns upon savings shares has attracted an increasing number of persons to this class of financial institutions.

"The investment companies and safe deposit companies continue to show substantial gains. The personal loan companies and brokers also show an increase in revenues.

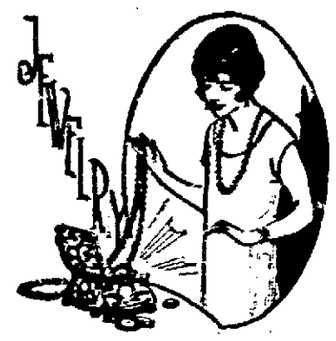

DISABLED WAR VETERAN MAKES HOMESTEAD PAY

La Jara, Colo., March 15 (AP).—James C. Pierson, a disabled war veteran six years ago, is now the owner of a farm from which he earns approximately $5,000 a year.

Pierson was gassed while serving overseas and was discharged from the army in 1921 because of disabilities. He took up a homestead in the San Luis Valley, but his health grew poorer and he appealed to the veterans bureau for aid. The bureau advanced him funds and sent him to Colorado Agricultural college, where he studied poultry raising and bee culture.

When he returned to his farm he bought a few chickens and several stands of bees.

Although he had only seven acres he could cultivate, Pierson planted a large part of it to vegetables. Today Pierson is rated by the veterans bureau as a "success."
